BALLOTS BLOCK STREETS, TAMMANY DEFIES COURT

City, State and Federal Officials Join in WAR ON CRIME DENS

Girl Whose Tragic Death Has Caused Crusade Against Murder Dens

Pretty Dancing Girl a Type of Many Victims of Gang That Makes Crime a Business

PICTURE OF SUSAN GEARY, SUIT CASE VICTIM, NEVER BEFORE PRINTED

This excellent photograph of the pretty chorus girl, exclusively published by the BOSTON AMERICAN, was taken in a Springfield studio, but the young woman never called for proofs or photographs.

Authorities Stirred to Action By Revelations Following Suit Case Tragedy.

War has been declared on the Boston dens which make suit case crimes possible and to-day the federal State and city authorities will join forces in driving them out of Boston. The death of Susan Geary, the suit case victim, as the result of treatment at the Mrs. "Dr." Bishop office, No. 178 Tremont street, has brought the matter to a head.

The election of John B. Moran to the office of District Attorney, which is believed to have been largely due to his promise to wipe out these illegal places, has shown the officials the feeling of the public towards such dens and has had much to do with stirring them to action.

Police Commissioner Emmons, Deputy Chief of the State Police Neal, Post-office Inspector Snow and Dr. Harvey, chairman of the estate Board of Registrars, will meet to-day to decide upon the best way in which to eradicate the malpractice evil. Judge Emmons already has a list containing the names of more than thirty of these places against which proceedings will be begun as soon as the best method can be decided upon.

ALL ARE MURDER DENS.

Post Office Inspector Snow makes the declaration that "there are thirty 'medical offices' in a row on Tremont street, and every one is a murder den."

"Some of these offices where illegal malpractice is carried on have a record of a death a week, and this in spite of the fact that they have reputable physicians connected with their places," said Inspector Snow. "These physicians in good standing generally conceal the real cause of death. Some of these offices make enormous profits, one office alone being known to have cleared $100,000 a year for many years, but these places can be driven out.

"We know where these offices are, we know who the doctors are and we know the real owners of the offices. We will cheerfully furnish any information we have to the police and give them any assistance in our power. We have already shut down on their advertising, which saves the poor

MORAN WILL PROBE HOTEL LIQUOR CASE

DISTRICT ATTORNEY-ELECT TO INVESTIGATE TOURAINE BAR SERVICE.

John B. Moran, District Attorney-elect for Suffolk county, makes his solemn promise that he will carry out every one of the platform pledges he made during the campaign.

Immediate investigation of the famous liquor license and bar service at the Hotel Touraine is one of the most important of those pledges. As this is one of the principal hotels, not only in Boston but in the entire East, the outcome of the investigation promised by Mr. Moran is being discussed with intense interest.

Mr. Moran asserted on the platform that liquor was being sold in the Hotel Touraine as he believed in violation of the law. He declared that he would present the facts to the Grand Jury.

Here is what the district attorney-elect said with reference to the Hotel Touraine in his campaign speeches as reported in the BOSTON AMERICAN:

Law Scorned by Hotels.

"I charge that the Board of Police are in the habit of conniving at violations of law by wealthy hotel owners, and I prove this statement by the following facts: The so-called screen law applies to hotel licensees as well as to all other classes of liquor licenses. By a decision of the Supreme Court the maintaining of a screen which in any way interferes with a view of the interior of the premises where the license is operated renders void the license, and every sale of liquor made after the placing of a screen upon the windows or doors in such a way as to interfere with a view of the interior of the premises is a sale for which the person selling can be prosecuted under the criminal law.

"Everybody passes the Parker House on the School street side, or who passes Young's Hotel on the Court square and Court street sides, can observe for himself an interference with the view of the interior of the premises by means of curtains on the Parker House and colored glass windows in Young's. The Board of Police necessarily have knowledge of this. They have sworn duties to perform to prosecute all crimes. Neglect to prosecute crimes by sworn officials whose duty it is to prosecute constitutes a violation of the criminal law.

"When elected, I will see to it that the Board of Police enforce the law as to screens against these and other hotels, and that no discrimination is made in favor of the wealthy proprietors of large hotels; and if the members of the Board of Police neglect to perform their duties, I will administer the criminal law to them.

Evasion by Touraine.

"I now desire to call your attention to a most peculiar condition of affairs existing at the Hotel Touraine. This hotel is within 400 feet of a schoolhouse, and therefore no license can be granted for anybody to sell liquor to be drunk on the premises. Some shrewd lawyers, acting for the wealthy owners and proprietors of this hotel, devised a scheme to evade this law, and this scheme is assented to and approved by the Board of Police. One John

"Money or Otherwise—Command Me," Wires Lawson to William R. Hearst

"If I can do anything—money or otherwise—command me. I have some of the wisest and most level-headed attorneys in America. They are at your disposal."—Thomas W. Lawson in dispatch to-day to William Randolph Hearst, urging him to fight day and night against election frauds by Tammany.

KRONSTADT TROOPS IN MUTINY, MANY KILLED

OFFICERS OVERPOWERED AND PILLAGE AND PLUNDER FOLLOW NIGHT OF FIGHTING.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company at Paris wires that a report is current there to the effect that a serious mutiny has broken out among the marine artillerymen at Kronstadt. Several officers are said to have been killed by the mutineers.

After overpowering the officers many of the mutineers landed and attacked shops and public buildings, plundering them and sacking the public spirits depots. The troops were called out and a fierce fight followed, in which there were many casualties. The mutineers were well armed. They had secured several machine guns and offered a determined resistance to the troops.

The fighting lasted all night, during which many houses were set on fire. The great buildings occupied by the Navy Club were pillaged. Panic prevailed among the residents.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 9.—The Jewish massacres which, according to trustworthy authorities, have resulted in the deaths of 15,000 Hebrews and the wounding of 100,000 more in Southern Russia, have called forth a chorus of denunciation against the government, particularly against General Trepoff, head of the Russian police, who has been forced out of office because he was an insuperable obstacle to any co-operation of Count Witte and the Constitutional Democrats.

The heroic resistance of the Jews of Kishineff and Odessa against the hordes incited by the police is wilfully misrepresented by anti-Semitic organs as evidence of Jewish aggression. The foreign press no doubt as to who were the aggressors. The newspapers express in strong terms condemnation of the authorities of Odessa and Kishineff, who did not scruple to use artillery against Jewish houses whence shots had been fired to beat off assailants.

REPORT MUTINY IN RIO JANEIRO

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Rothschild banking house to-day received a dispatch from Rio Janeiro, as follows:

"The garrison of the fortress of Santa Cruz has revolted. So far the revolt is without political motive. The Brazilian government is acting energetically. Public feeling is calm. Exchange 13 1-32."

Lord Rothschild says there have been no disturbances at Rio Janeiro.

ALFONSO MEETS THE DUCHESS MARIE

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—King Alfonso was present at a dinner of the Imperial family in the Jasper hall of the new palace at Potsdam.

Among the guests was Duchess Marie Antoinette of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who was specially invited to meet the king. This is the first time they have seen one another, and the meeting is the subject of much comment in court circles.

GOT SHERIFF TO FREE FIANCEE

Special to the Boston American.

HINSDALE, Nov. 9.—John Corbett of Dolton invoked the aid of Deputy Sheriff Goodwin that he might secure the freedom of his sweetheart, Miss Helen M. Ford, who was kept locked in a room by her brother Frank, opposed to the match and resolute in preventing it.

Frank Ford gave in, however, when the deputy appeared on the scene with his sister's fiance and ordered him to let her out of the room. Miss Ford when released went with Corbett to Dalton, where arrangements are in progress for the wedding.

L. D. BRANDEIS TO SPEAK.

Louis D. Brandeis of the Good Government Association will address the November meeting of the Roslindale Citizens' Association to-morrow evening. He will speak on the purposes of the Good Government Association. The meeting is to be held in Fairview Hall, Corinth and Poplar streets.

Head of Election Board Refuses to Receive Ballots Ordered to Be Recounted on Demand of William R. Hearst and Boxes Are Dumped from Patrol Wagons—Great Crowd About Office.

By Boston American Leased Wire

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—In a desperate effort to prevent the proof of charges of gross frauds, violence and crime of every description at Tuesday's election, Tammany to-day decided to block all efforts by the people, under the leadership of William Randolph Hearst, to obtain, first, an honest count of the votes cast for mayoralty candidates.

Steps in this direction quickly followed when the court's order for turning over all ballot boxes to the Elections Board was practically ignored by the Tammany chief of the Board, who defiantly refused to receive the boxes.

SNAP SHOTS SHOW VIOLENCE.

District Attorney Jerome has had photographs taken of watchers who were assaulted and injured in the performance of their duty. Mr. Hearst's friends have over 600 affidavits as to fraud and more will be taken to-day, when several warrants for arrests will be applied for.

John R. Voorhis, the Tammany president of the board of election commissioners, refused to-day to receive the ballot boxes containing the ballots cast on Tuesday and which the police were ordered by Supreme Court Justice Gaynor to turn over to him forthwith.

At 10:30 o'clock many of the police were ordered back to their police stations, with the patrol wagons, in order to take prisoners to court. Upon receipt of this order the ballot boxes were unceremoniously dumped on the sidewalk in front of the Forty-first and Forty-second street entrances to the bureau.

They were allowed to remain there, Voorhis refusing to permit them to be stored in the offices of the bureau. He declared that he was acting in concert with Police Commissioner McAdoo, under advice of Corporation Counsel Delaney.

The order was obtained by counsel for William R. Hearst at 10 o'clock last night and immediately served on Captain Cruise at police headquarters and on Commissioner McAdoo by telephone. The boxes were ordered delivered at once and an hour later they were being carted in patrol wagons, vans and express wagons from the several precincts to the bureau of elections in No. 112 West Forty-second street.

REFUSED TO OPEN OFFICE.

President Voorhis refused to come down and open the office, although appealed to three times to receive the boxes. He said:

"I am not going to be inconvenienced by any one, not even by Justice Gaynor. If Mr. McAdoo desires me to open the office as a personal favor, I will do so. I maintain that the order leaves opportunity for those opposing Mr. Hearst's object to seek an order to show cause why the boxes should be delivered up at noon to-day."

President Voorhis, instead of going to his office, went for a conference with Police Commissioner McAdoo. Meanwhile, twenty-four patrol wagons and four big trucks loaded with ballot boxes were lined up in Forty-second street, guarded by 250 policemen.

The same condition prevailed in Court street, Brooklyn, at the Brooklyn branch of the Bureau, where thirty wagons, 200 policemen and 5,000 spectators blocked the street.

After his conference with Commissioner McAdoo President Voorhis at his office said to an AMERICAN reporter:

"I have been advised not to accept the ballot boxes until after I have consulted the corporation counsel, and I shall act on that advice. I have no room for the boxes anyhow, and if they are received they would have to be placed in a public storehouse under police guard.

The Board of Elections decided that the police should be the temporary custodians of the ballot boxes as has been the custom heretofore.

The order issued by Justice Gaynor was made returnable at noon to-day in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn.

TO ENFORCE COURT'S ORDER.

F. W. Brown, representing Mr. Hearst, notified Clarence J. Shearn and Austen G. Fox of the refusal of Voorhis to receive the boxes, and steps were at once taken by the Municipal League counsel and Mr. Shearn to enforce Justice Gaynor's writ of mandamus.

When the delivery of the ballot boxes was begun in Brooklyn it was found that ninety-three ballot boxes in that borough had been improperly sealed. The boxes were delivered in thirty patrol and express wagons and an enormous crowd, estimated at one time during the forenoon at 5,000 people, gathered in front of the branch election bureau at No. 44 Court street.

There were 200 policemen on guard and the throng was kept at a respectful distance from the boxes while they were being transferred from the patrol wagons and trucks to the office of the bureau.

At Manhattan Forty-second street was soon blocked between Sixth avenue and Broadway, and the crowds extended down both Sixth avenue and Broadway to Forty-first street.

One hundred and fifty reserves in charge of Commissioner Bingham, of the West Thirtieth Street Station, aided the 100 police who had accompanied the ballot boxes in keeping back the crowds.

Among the counsel retained secured by the Law Committee of the Municipal Ownership League in contesting the election is William M. Ivins, Republican candidate for Mayor, who offered his services and refused to accept compensation.

The following letter was received by Mr. Hearst last night:

"New York, Nov. 8, 1905.

"To Hon. William R. Hearst:

"My Dear Sir—It is impossible for me to accept Mr. Shearn's kind offer to retain me professionally in your behalf in the case of the contested election for the mayoralty, as I am sure you will on reflection, appreciate.

Having myself been a candidate, no purely business considerations could possibly induce me to take any part in the contest after my own very decisive defeat.

Nevertheless, I feel very strongly about the matter. I am personally entitled of your election, although I did all that a gentleman could do to prevent it. The great question for our people now, as ever, is that the sanctity of the ballot should be maintained inviolate. This lies at the foundation of our institutions, and takes precedence of every other political consideration whatever.

Therefore, in behalf of my own great constituency, and for your much greater one, as well as of your inviolable right, I am very willing in the interest of the right, but not for compensation, to undertake the conduct of your case in concert and consultation with such other counsel as you may select.

I remain, my dear sir,

Yours sincerely,

WILLIAM M. EVINS

Hearst's Real Brooklyn Lead is 40,000

Robert Stewart, who has been taking care of the legal interests of the Municipal Ownership League in Brooklyn, declares that he has unearthed enough evidence of fraudulent votes cast in that borough to give Mr. Hearst 25,000 more votes, raising his plurality from 15,000 to 40,000, and assuring his election beyond a possible doubt.

The frauds consisted of uncounted ballots, votes uncounted and ballots destroyed. In the Seventh Assembly District of Brooklyn alone 100 votes were improperly counted.

Henry Hill, of the Second Assembly District of Brooklyn, asserted that he could establish that 500 floaters had voted in that district, and had been taken to Manhattan to vote in one of the districts on the lower East Side, controlled by Tammany.

Evidences of fraud were brought to the Municipal Ownership headquarters all day yesterday.

Mail Discloses Fraud.

Henry F. Cochrane, who has been an energetic worker for the Municipal Ownership ticket, sent this word to headquarters:

"Fifteen thousand pieces of mail matter are lying at the Brooklyn postoffice containing political literature and addressed to people whose names appear on the registration lists, but whom the carriers have been unable to find. Yet as nearly as we have been able to trace it up, these same names have been voted on election day at the various polling places by people who have voted."

Mr. Cochrane further declared that the most flagrant violations of the election law had been committed in the borough and that in many instances the perpetrators were known.

Prior to the election Mr. Cochrane served notice on all who contributed to the Tammany fund to the effect that was used for corrupt purposes, the parties contributing to the same were equally guilty with those who used the money for illegal purposes.

"I have in my possession," said Mr. Cochrane, "names of many who could contribute to this fund and I intend to carry out my promise. Yellow cards have figured largely in this election, and I will make it my personal business to bring all who are guilty either in their own or in the contribution of the same, to justice."

TAMMANY LEADERS ADMIT MACHINE IS WRECKED BY MURPHY

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Tammany leaders confess that the Tammany Hall machine has gone to pieces under Charles F. Murphy's management as was fully shown by the vote in the election.

According to Tammany's own figures William R. Hearst carried eleven assembly districts in Manhattan and the Bronx, every one a Tammany stronghold and supposed to be as safe as Tim Sullivan's Bowery district. He came within a handful of votes of carrying a half dozen more equally solid Tammany districts. Indian's seventh district came within little more than 100 of going for Hearst.

Four of the districts carried by Hearst are on the East side and are peopled by Jewish people.

Jerome, the Republican candidate, carried only one assembly district in all Manhattan and the Bronx, Tim Sullivan's Twenty-fifth, and that he got by but 11 votes.

STAY PAYMENT OF ELECTION BETS FOR RECOUNT VERDICT

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Wall street has indicated its strong doubt of the election of McClellan by decreeing that no wagers on the election for mayor shall be paid until the contest has been decided by the recount of the votes. Stakeholders are instructed not to pay any bets except those on the number of votes cast for W. R. Hearst. Betting on Mr. Hearst's vote up to 190,000 are being paid off. The betting commissioners declare that the indications of McClellan's election are by no means strong enough to warrant them in paying off bets.

WILL ASK HEARST TO SPEAK AGAINST MURDER OF JEWS.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—Delegates of fifty Jewish societies met in the Hebrew Literary Society hall to protest against the Russian massacre of Jews. It was decided to form a permanent organization and to call a mass meeting.

When the question arose as to who should be asked to address the meeting there were cries of "Hearst! Hearst!" from all sides. It was decided to ask William Randolph Hearst, Grover Cleveland, Mayor Weaver, Clarence Darrow of Chicago, Street Crosby of New York, and others.

Another meeting will be held to-night to perfect plans.

"BOSS" RULE.

Men battered and bruised were helped by friends into the Municipal Ownership headquarters during the night. One man had a broken arm dangling in his sleeve. Another's head had been cut open and the blood was trickling through his bandages. Tammany thugs in the lower East Side District had all but killed him.

From many parts of Manhattan reports poured in of the greatest violence and crimes at the polls that New York has ever known.—Extract from New York World's account of the municipal election in New York.

M'CLELLAN COUNT A FRAUD--N. Y. PRESS

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The New York Press, Republican, says editorially to-day:

We do not suppose that anybody in the city of New York, George B. McClellan himself included, thinks that McClellan was elected mayor on Tuesday. But his intimate friends, who managed his campaign and performed the crooked work which is made to show on the face a slight lead for him in the COUNT, overstepped the line of their personal safety. There were too many thousand repeaters voted. There were too many anti-Tammany voters driven from the polls by thugs who mauled, kicked and blackjacked them into insensibility and even shot at them. There were too many ballot boxes —which would be complete evidence that McClellan was NOT elected—secreted, burned and thrown into the river.

Too much of this sort of work, we say, for there to be any doubt that the few hundred plurality which McClellan claims is a fraud. We are not predicting that McClellan will not sit in the Mayor's chair after January 1. We realize that the same sort of conspiracy and corruption that made the fraudulent COUNT on the night of election can be repeated to confirm it. The McClellan management paid for its goods, and they will be delivered, if it is possible to accomplish the delivery, because those who get the money for their share of the work of fraud want to keep it. THEY WILL NEED IT TO FIGHT AGAINST GOING TO STATE'S PRISON.

Once an American citizen who was declared to be elected to the House of Representatives refused to take his seat there because an examination of the ballots which showed his election—by the COUNT—clearly revealed that he had his seat by fraud. He scorned to hold a seat to which he was not elected. He went back home, and at the next election they knew they had found an honest man to represent them, if they would honestly elect him.

We are not looking for any such moral heroism from George B. McClellan. He is of a different stripe. We have no doubt that if it was a certainty that he had been beaten by 50,000, but if the COUNT could be made to show his election by one vote, he would stay in the office, and fight to stay there, at the command of Murphy.

But with Jerome in the District Attorney's office something can be done in addition to the effort to get that particular vote honestly counted and honestly put into force. He can punish the friends of McClellan who effected his dishonest election.

ELOPED JUST TO ESCAPE FRILLS

Much surprise was caused in Brooklyn by the announcement of the elopement and secret wedding of Frederick N. Gordan and Ethel Apt. The wedding took place November 1, when without the knowledge of relatives or friends the young couple stole quietly into Boston and were married.

About three years ago Fred Gordan entered the employ of his uncles, Robert Brothers, the largest furniture dealers in the town, as clerk. There he met Ethel Apt, a girl of eighteen, a bookkeeper for the firm. They became friends, and soon their friends were predicting a wedding. As the years went by their affections seemed to be purely platonic.

Early last Wednesday evening they were with friends, but later, pleading an engagement in town, left them. They went at once to the People's Temple, Columbus avenue, and were married at the parsonage.

They said that they eloped simply to escape the "frills and formalities and unnecessary gifts pertaining to a wedding.

GIRL MARRIED WHILE ON VISIT TO FRIENDS

LAWRENCE, Nov. 9.—The secret wedding of Nellie Wiggin, who is seventeen years old, and Henry A. Merriam, who is twenty-one, has just become known to friends and relatives. The bride's home is in Tamworth, N. H. The groom's home is in this city. The girl's mother allowed her to come here for a short visit. The mother wrote for her to return to New Hampshire. The girl refused. She and Merriam had been married by the Rev. George E. Lovejoy. Mrs. Wiggin came to Lawrence to see about it. She went back without her daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Merriam will continue to live in this city.

ACTOR BUSH SEEKS DIVORCE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Reginald Franklin Bush, known to theatregoers as Frank Bush, a Hebrew impersonator, applied to Judge Walker in the Circuit Court for a divorce from his wife, Maude Bush. A letter said to have been addressed by Mrs. Bush to John L. Cook of Redbank, N. J., was responsible for the separation of the actor and his wife. The letter read:

"New York, Jan. 6, 1901.

"Dear John: Just a line to tell you Frank walked in unexpectedly to-night at 5:30 p. m. I was never more disgusted in all my life. Our next door neighbor, as I told you, saw us together and told Mr. Bush even before I saw him myself. So he came in. I will manage to see you more in a while. Lovingly, MAUDE."

BEGINS ALDERMANIC CAMPAIGN TO-NIGHT

Thomas Gibbs of East Boston, who is a candidate for election to the Board of Aldermen, in opposition to Michael J. Leahy, begins his active campaign to-night. He has gathered together a number of young men, and they will assist him in the stump.

Automobiles will be used in the speech-making tours, and to-night rallies will be held in Day square and Orient Heights square.

LOST JOB AT 104; TRIES SUICIDE

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 9.—Frank Mehan, aged 104 years, attempted to commit suicide by jumping into the Missouri River because he had lost his job and was unable to obtain another. The old man was rescued by a policeman, and raised a disturbance because he was not permitted to die.

If Fraud Is Proved, Hearst Should Be Seated.--N. Y. World

If William Randolph Hearst received in Tuesday's election one single vote more than Mayor McClellan;

If enough Hearst votes to have changed the result were driven from the voting booths by bulldozing and browbeating;

If repeaters and floaters expressed at the polls what passed for the will of the people:

If unexampled frauds availed to taint the reckoning of the ballots, after they were cast;

If for any one of these reasons, or for all these reasons combined, the election figures do falsely record the will of the voters, then law should intervene, then justice should be done, then Mr. Hearst should be seated.

It is not in question now who is best fitted for the Mayor's duty. Rival policies need not be considered. One single duty confronts New York. If the people's will is not shown in the apparent verdict, let the fact be established and let that will prevail.—Editorial New York World To-day.

NOTED AUTHOR EVADES TAXES

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 9.—Mrs. Alice Hegan Rice, who four years ago sprang into prominence through the medium of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," has admitted in the County Court that she had failed to give a correct accounting of personalty amounting to $25,000 that is subject to taxation. This has been going on since 1903.

Suit had been initiated against the author by Revenue Agent A. J. Hinzi, whose special duty it is to look after back taxes.

FINED FOR PLAYING DICE ON SUNDAY

For playing dice on Sunday Judge Fallon of the South Boston District Court fined three young men $10 each this morning. They were Charles H. Newton of No. 200 Broadway, Frank Alcenzi of No. 164 Silver street and John Sullivan of 270 Broadway.

MISS GREELY TO WED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—General Greely, chief of the signal service of the United States army, and Mrs. Greely have announced the engagement of their daughter, Adola, to Rev. Charles Lawrence Adams of Pittsfield, Mass.

WIRELESS FOR SHIPS, BALLOONS

MADRID, Spain, Nov. 9.—A series of experiments was conducted at Bilbon by an electrical engineer named Torres with a "telekino engine," an invention with which he proposes to manage ships and war balloons from the land by means of wireless telegraphy.

During the tests the apparatus was placed on the terrace of the Maritime Club. A ship manoeuvring in the bay was under the direction of the inventor who flashed signals to the war vessel. The test is reported to have been very satisfactory.

MOTHER'S LIFE SAVED BY SON

WINSTED, Ct., Nov. 9.—When Mrs. Ashbel Smith, of Litchfield, left home saying she was going to kill herself, her fourteen-year-old son overheard the threat, followed his mother to the Shehaug railroad, and as she threw herself in front of a switch engine, dragged her from death under the wheels just as the locomotive passed.

The son pleaded with his mother to return home, but she refused. As another train approached the demented mother tore away from her son and again threw herself on the track. The son again succeeded in saving his mother, and she was taken home.

Federal, State and City Authorities Meet To-day to Start Crusade.

HAVE BIG LIST OF PLACES

country girls from falling into the clutches of these men. This has hit them hard, for by advertising they obtained most of their patients. They are still getting people from around the city, but this, the police office cannot prevent. That is up to the local police."

83 CASES A WEEK.

One office was found to have eighty-three cases in one week, and the proprietors said business was poor, but authorities say that at least one in every twenty-five cases result fatally. To elude any investigation by the police the offices are let and sublet so many times that it is almost an impossibility to learn the identity of the real owner.

Deputy Chief Neal of the State Police and Judge Emmons have already been in consultation on the matter. Deputy Neal said to Judge Emmons:

"I will do all that I can to aid you in your crusade against these places, but they are a nuisance in this city already under suspicion."

The authorities say that it is very difficult to get evidence that will warrant raids and arrests in these cases, or to get witnesses to prosecute the proprietors of the dens. Some notorious places, however, will be closed summarily as soon as the conduct them have no licenses to practice.

ANOTHER DOCTOR IN CASE.

In the case of Susan Geary it has developed that another young doctor of excellent standing and reputed to be a capable surgeon, may be implicated. He is said to be one of the surgeons who performed the operation of laparotomy a few days before the girl died, the operation being undertaken as a desperate means to save her life.

It is not believed that this doctor was present at the dismemberment of the body, or that he knows anything about the case beyond what he has been told since the body was disposed of.

According to the information in the hands of the authorities this same physician left the house after the operation and was not called in afterward. Miss Geary lived four days after that operation. The doctor was not present when she died, nor did he know of her death until several days afterward.

He is said to be an old friend of Dr. McLeod and lives in Roxbury not far from No. 68 Winthrop street, where the girl died.

The Boston police have confirmed the identification of Howard, or Hunt, now under arrest in New York, as Miss Roberts' who was at the head of a multipurchase syndicate in Dedham until he was driven out of the city by the authorities.

"Annie Brown," serving a five-year sentence at Sherborn on the charge of being accessory to the death of Elsie Allen of Winthrop, in the Bishop establishment, identified a picture of Hunt as that of a man whom she knew at the Bishop place as "Dr. Roberts." She did not know him by any other name.

Mrs. Brown also said, it is stated, that there was a connection between Dr. McLeod and the Bishop office.

Hunt was in Philadelphia for a year or two, and the establishment is said to have run there was closed by the police after the death of a young choir singer. The Philadelphia officials were informed that "Dr. Roberts" came to Boston.

CHIEF WATTS NOT SURE MRS. DEAN IS IN NOVA SCOTIA

Chief William B. Watts of the Boston police doubts the value of the clue that Mrs. Mary S. Dean, the much-sought nurse in the rose case crime, is in Halifax, N. S. He has received a description of the woman and asked that she be kept under surveillance, but late despatches say she has disappeared.

"Judging from the description sent down, I should not say that it was Mrs. Dean," said Chief Watts; but descriptions are often very deceptive, and actual results will tell later.

"If I knew where Mrs. Dean was I would have her arrested. As it is, we are still prosecuting a vigorous search for her and expect a quick arrest, for her trail has been closely traced."

CAN EXTRADITE SUIT CASE SUSPECTS IF IN PROVINCES

It has been found that by treaty between the United States and the English governments, any person wanted by the police in connection with the death of Susan Geary can be extradited.

Specific reference is made to the crime with which the persons wanted are charged. Mrs. "Mary Bean," the nurse who is believed to have escaped to Nova Scotia, is located, could be arrested, held for the Massachusetts authorities and turned over to them on the presentation of the proper papers.

Clarke, on "Extradition," a high authority, says that by treaty concluded on July 12, 1889, supplementary to the treaty of 1842, signed at Washington and ratified on March 11, 1890, certain crimes were added that were not specified in the earlier treaty.

A subsequent treaty ratified April 22, 1901, still further enlarged the list of crimes.

By this list of crimes the authorities of the city have no doubt that they will be able to bring to trial all persons they want, whether those persons are arrested in Nova Scotia, Newfoundland or any other British province.

Some doubt had been expressed about the rights of the State to extradite Mrs. "Dean" in event of her arrest.

WOMEN PLAN CHARITY FAIR

A list of twenty-eight members of the Young Ladies' Charitable Association is announced to have charge of the many tables at the annual fair in Paul Revere Hall, December 11 to 15, for the benefit of the Free Home for Consumptives. An invitation is extended to the Paul Revere Society to attend.

Miss "Samantha" Loretta Collier and Miss "Thankful" Johnson Blunt were appointed town criers to attend to the press. Miss "Susanna" Rosamond Dean will have charge of the tavern, where "Goodman" Blunt will serve an old colonial supper every evening of the fair.

GIRL CATCHES LINER AFTER RACE IN A CAB AND DOWN THE BAY IN A TUG

Miss Tarbolton, on Trip From Australia, Is Held Back By Her Train Being Late.

When the morning train from Chicago pulled into the South Station to-day, away behind schedule time, the first passenger to land off, almost before it stopped, was a pretty young woman, excited in the extreme. Behind her came a porter, carrying a couple of dress suit cases. She was on the last lap of a race from San Francisco to the White Star line dock in Charlestown.

"Oh, my!" she exclaimed, as she looked at a little jewelled watch, "I've got less than ten minutes to get the Cymric. What shall I do, what shall I do?"

She didn't stop to meditate over the matter, but rushed to the entrance, and there was assailed by the cries of "Keb, keb; keb, keb!"

In another second she had picked out the real hackman in the long row of cabs and was dashing over the pavement to the White Star line pier in Charlestown, while a grinning porter, with a bill in his hand, stood on the sidewalk scattering pedestrians to dodge from under the flying hoofs of the horse.

Started From Australia.

The young woman was Miss Grace W. Tarbolton of Sydney, Australia.

SEEK DOCTOR IN MISSING MAINE GIRL'S CASE

Iola Reed Says She Was in Boston with Nowell After Leaving Home.

Iola Reed, the fifteen-year-old Newfield, Me., girl, who was missing from her home for two weeks, has admitted to her mother that during that time she was in the company of Charles H. Nowell, an insurance agent of Sanford, who is held for the $5,000 upper court in $3,000, and that they were in Portland and Boston together.

Officers of York County, Me., have been in Boston in search of a physician of this city, who is said to have been connected with the case. They were assisted in their search by Boston inspectors.

County Attorney Emery, of York County, says that the Maine officers were aided by four Boston inspectors who had been at work on the dress suit case mystery. The office of the detectives has also declared admitted that a man who answered Nowell's description had called there to see the doctor. When shown a photograph of Nowell, she said that was the man, but that he looked older than the picture.

The rooms were examined and evidences were found that the doctor had left in a hurry.

The police also learned that the girl had left for home.

TEN WARD MEETINGS ARE ADDRESSED BY JOHN F. FITZGERALD

Ten ward meetings were addressed by John F. Fitzgerald, candidate for the Democratic mayoralty nomination. The ex-Congressman started out in a huge automobile, and beginning with his home district, Dorchester, made four speeches in Ward 24, two in Ward 20, three in Ward 18 and one in Ward 15, South Boston. In all the candidate addressed 8,000 people during the night's tour.

He was met by enthusiastic voters everywhere. Mr. Fitzgerald was accompanied by his brother, Henry S. Fitzgerald. The candidate's speeches were nearly the same at each stop.

Here is a portion of Mr. Fitzgerald's remarks to the voters in Ward 15:

"I believe that very many cases can be found to-day where the owners of land, through which a street might be laid out with advantage, would be glad to pay the whole cost of such an improvement if they could be given a reasonable period of time to bring their land into the market. It should certainly be the function of the city to obtain proper limits to its credit, for this is all the operation comes to, for such a useful purpose.

"Another word regarding the condition of the public streets. A journey through the thoroughfares of any section of the city is disgusted with the condition of our public streets.

"It is generally admitted by all fair-minded men that the administration of the street department from the public safety standpoint should be entirely separated and from the public comfort standpoint has been worse during the past few years than at any other time in its history. If my opponent should be elected the present officials will continue in power. If I am elected I will have a house cleaning of those officials holding responsible positions.

"The victory of Jerome in New York, Weaver in Philadelphia and Moran in Boston encourages me to believe that the policy which I advocated in the beginning of my campaign to banish graft and jail the grafters is a policy which the people will indorse on primary day."

CITY CAMPAIGN IS NOW IN FULL SWING

MAYORALTY CANDIDATES OF BOTH PARTIES BEGIN STRENUOUS WORK.

The campaign for mayoralty nominations on both the Republican and Democratic tickets is now in full swing. With the close of the gubernatorial election public interest has been transferred to the opening of the contest of Judge Dewey to wrest the Republican nomination for Mayor from former Speaker Frothingham, the machine candidate, and Edward H. Lathe leader, who has also filed a petition for the nomination.

With renewed interest Democrats are watching the combination of the fight for the Democratic nomination for Mayor between Edward J. Donovan and John F. Fitzgerald. Meetings will be held to-night in the various wards under the direction of the respective candidates.

Judge Dewey from his first gun before a large gathering in the Dudley Street Opera House. Attired in a dress suit, he held a large gathering his reason for entering the fight for the Republican nomination, referred to John R. Morse's election as District Attorney on a pledge to the city, and declared his reliance upon the same public independence of bosses to secure the nomination.

John F. Fitzgerald, in a flying trip about the city, addressed eight thousand people at ten ward meetings. He was received with enthusiasm at every meeting, and fired against graft and grafters, attacking many of the prominent figures in the present government.

At the Donovan meetings held in Ward 3 and Ward 13 Martin M. Lomasney was the principal speaker. He attacked Congressman John A. Sullivan. At the South Boston meeting, which was friendly to Donovan on the whole, the speakers were interrupted by Hines, and one man had to be ejected to restore order.

JUDGE DEWEY OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN FOR THE MAYORALTY

Judge Henry S. Dewey started his campaign for the Republican nomination for Mayor by addressing a large gathering in the Dudley Street Opera House, where he outlined his reasons for becoming a candidate.

He referred to the election of John R. Moran as District Attorney, declaring it to be a "vindication of the independent vote." The same spirit of independence of politics, he said, on the part of the voters, he declared, he relied upon to select him as the Republican candidate.

"The office should seek the man and not the man the office," he said. "I have announced my candidacy because many people have told me that they wished me to become a candidate. I believe that there is a large number of Republicans in Boston who wish an opportunity to vote for me.

"I have not behind a single individual or a single newspaper or corporation to help me, and that will continue to be my policy. I do not intend to make any promises or give any assurances during this campaign beyond the assurance given in my note of announcement.

"I don't expect in this campaign to say a word against the character or ability of either of the other two candidates. The question regarding at least one of these candidates is, Will you take orders or will you take a candidate backed by the Republican party, the Good Government Association and I don't know how many dollars?

"As for the report that Mr. Lomasney visited the home of one of the Republican leaders in the Back Bay regarding the candidacy of the third candidate, if this candidate will consider the source he knows that this is not true. I will have nothing to say about it in the campaign."

MARTIN LOMASNEY SPEAKS AT TWO BIG DONOVAN RALLIES

Two rallies in the interest of Edward J. Donovan, candidate for the Democratic mayoralty nomination, were held, one in the Ward 3 wardroom, Charlestown, and the other in Sheridan Hall, Ward 13, South Boston. Both meetings were large and noisy. There was some disturbance in the South Boston meeting. Martin M. Lomasney and other speakers had a rough and some scattering cheers being given for Donovan's rival for the nomination, John F. Fitzgerald. On the whole, both meetings were friendly to the Donovan forces.

The candidate himself addressed neither meeting; Martin M. Lomasney made long speeches at each. Representative-elect Teddy Glynn of Ward 17 was the first speaker at the South Boston rally. Glynn followed Fitzgerald the "corporation" candidate. While Thomas F. Phelan, the next speaker, was talking a man in the rear of the room was elected for calling the speaker a liar. When arrested Lomasney, who was given a rousing cheer and plunged at once into his speech.

"I'm getting to be an old hasbeen," he began. "That's what John A. Sullivan thought the other day when he started throwing bricks at me. When I was in the Board of Aldermen I fought for flesh and blood. I fought for humanity, for I sought to have the dark cell removed from penal institutions, and who was it fought me? It was John H. Lee, who is now with Fitzgerald.

"I am not a talker, as you know. John A. Sullivan is a fellow who you would not think could be so miserable. He is a fellow with no principle. This foxy fellow undertook to play ball with me the other day. He thought he would get me into a newspaper controversy. I am one of the old gang and know the ropes. How many men did he have running? How many men did he get over put on the voting list?

"He wrote a letter to the newspapers but I followed right after him and then he wrote another and I was with him again. From the way he wants the city conducted I can see lumbering stealing down the face. This is a campaign against corporations by the people.

"Fitzgerald has been a candidate for four years. He says he will give you a bigger harbor. If he big enough nose to sniff out of us to sink from sight in it, the will be you a bigger harbor, well, it may be too hot and too small for some of them when he gets to work."

At the Charlestown rally Lomasney repeated his South Boston speech, and was roundly cheered. Other speakers were John J. Gaffney, George F. Monahan and Joseph A. Conry.

GLOUCESTER MAN WED IN PITTSBURG

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 8. Many guests from Gloucester, Boston and other New England points were present at the wedding of Miss Jessie Brown Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Scott of Aldine Station, avenue, Edgewood, to Dr. Alvin Garland of Gloucester, Mass. Miss Garland of Gloucester, Mass. Miss Garland of Gloucester, a sister of the groom, was one of the bridesmaids. A reception followed the ceremony, after which Dr. and Mrs. Garland left on an extended wedding trip through the East.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK

Her train left Chicago yesterday on time, but had gradually lost time until she almost gave up hope of catching the boat.

Around corners at dangerous speed Cabman Hurley dashed, his horse's hoofs scarcely dashed on to the pier the big vessel was already moving out into the channel of the Charles, a tug turning her nose toward the dock.

For a moment Miss Tarbolton acted like an enthusiast.

"Come back, come back," she shouted. "But a tow! Impossible! The saucy tug was her only answer.

She looked about her with despair written all over her countenance. Just off the dock was the tug F. W. French, which had been warping the big steamer out. Miss Tarbolton hailed the tug.

"Will you take me to that boat," she shrieked.

"All right, miss, you'll get it," said the captain, as he turned the tug toward the dock.

Down a Rope Ladder.

A rope ladder was thrown up from the tug's deck, and in a moment Miss Tarbolton was clambering down it. Another moment and the tug was moving out in the stream, her engines going full speed, closing the ocean greyhound.

The tug rolled and pitched so far as the South ferry when the tug reached her. The tug rolled and pitched so far as the South ferry when the tug reached her. Then the girl, who by this time had caught the signals of the tug, but the vessel could not be stopped, made the passengers' gangway, taking a farewell look at Boston and seen for little time, tossing the tow-rope and sent up a cheer when they saw the race means life and happiness, answered with a wave of her handkerchief.

The tug then left, alongside the Cymric and a rope ladder was let down from the deck. It was a rather dangerous task to get on the ladder, but Miss Tarbolton did not hesitate. With the nerve of the independent young woman she is, she went up the ladder, step by step, and the passengers cheered.

The skipper of the P. W. French assisted her with the rope ladder, when she gained the deck and put a bill of goodly denomination into his hand. Meanwhile Miss Tarbolton disappeared in the crowd of passengers at the liner drew out of sight.

She has been travelling alone across the United States and all the way to Europe to study. She had engaged her passage on the Cymric in San Francisco.

WOMAN BURNED WITH FAT.

Mrs. George F. Briggs of No. 1,504 Dorchester avenue has been burned on the arm and her hair was singed by a fire in her kitchen to-day. She was frying fat, and it blazed up. She tried to extinguish the fire with flour, but the flames spread and reached her head and face.

Law Under Which License Was Refused to Touraine

Section 35 of the Revised Laws of Massachusetts, relating to the licensing of premises near public schools.

Section 35—No license of the first, second or third class shall be granted for the sale of intoxicating liquors in any building or place on the same street as, and within four hundred feet of, any building used in part by a public school; but the provisions of this section shall not prevent the granting of such licenses to be exercised on premises fitted up and occupied as a place for selling liquor under a license and by a license of a corresponding class of the preceding year, although said premises are within four hundred feet of a building used temporarily in whole or in part for school purposes, if such use will cease permanently within one year after the granting of said license.

MORAN WILL PROBE HOTEL LIQUOR SALE

it. Coleman, an old man, who was for years an employe of the proprietor of this hotel, is granted a wholesale license to sell liquor on the premises at the front of the basement floor of the building bounded by Tamworth, Boylston, Tremont and Lagrange streets, Nos. 64 Boylston, 194 to 202 Tremont and 1 and 3 Tamworth street, which is marked and designated as "Touraine" on the entrance to said room by a railing over and opposite to the outer entrance door, No. 3 Tamworth street, and to the distance of twenty-five feet or thereabouts therefrom, together with the two passageways in the sub-basement of said building connected with said Touraine wine room by a stairway.

"If thus appea a that Coleman is granted a wholesale license to do business in a room in the basement of the Hotel Touraine, the nearest approach to which from the street is twenty-five feet distant. In that room there is a counter behind that counter there are a number of bartenders. In the rear there is also a clerk at a window. Along the sides of the room there are shelves on which there are glasses of all kinds.

How Drinks Are Served.

"The process by which liquor is delivered to the guests of the hotel is as follows: The guest enters the dining room, takes a seat at a table, gives a written order for a cocktail or a glass of whiskey, pays his money to a waiter and the waiter leaves the dining room with the written order, and the money, goes down into the licensed wine room, passes the written order to the clerk, with the money, receives a slip, takes the slip and passes it with one of the glasses from the shelf to one of the bartenders. The bartender places the slip on a rod, retains it, fills the glass with the cocktail or glass of whiskey and passes it over the bar to the waiter. The waiter takes it, climbs the stairs and passes it down before the guest in the dining room on the table.

"The theory of the Board of Police is that the proprietor is paid upon taking from the money of the guest and his written order, because the servant of the guest.

"It must be apparent to you, as I think it would be to a jury, that the waiter always remains the servant and agent of the guests of the hotel, and that the claim that he becomes the servant of the guest is a mere fiction and subterfuge.

Favoritism Shown.

"As a lawyer I believe that if these facts were presented to a jury, a verdict of guilty of every one would result, and if I am elected I will present these facts to a jury. The wealthy owners and proprietors of the Hotel Touraine have no more right to thus evade the plain purpose of the law than has any other liquor dealer. There is no license except in the Hotel Touraine which is carried out in this way.

"This scheme was devised for the benefit of the Hotel Touraine, and the Board of Police has told me that similar privileges would not be granted to other persons. If it turns out that this is a violation of the criminal law, the police commissioners are themselves subject to investigation, and if it is found that they have knowingly and wilfully permitted a violation of the criminal law, they can be prosecuted for a violation of their oaths of office. They, as well as hotel officials, will be investigated by me in relation to this matter after I take the oath of office."

HOLYOKE WANTS TO ANNEX TERRITORY

HOLYOKE, Nov. 9.—The Holyoke board of aldermen by a unanimous vote passed an order requesting the representatives in the seventh and eighth Hampden districts to introduce and advocate at the next session of the general court a measure to annex to the city of Holyoke territory bounded by the Connecticut river, Chicopee river and the city of Holyoke and now under the jurisdiction of the city of Northampton. The territory that it is desired to annex includes Smiths Ferry and Mt. Tom Junction, the Holyoke water power, the Holyoke resort, and the Whiting street reservoir, part of the Holyoke water system.

How to Fool a Lazy Liver with Artificial Exercise

EVERY serious Sickness has a small beginning.

And, in nine cases out of ten that small beginning is made in the Bowels.

Indigestion is the beginning of most diseases.

It paves the way for all others.

Lack of exercise, hasty eating, improper food, are its first causes.

Laziness, and postponement, permits it to grow into Chronic Constipation, which means life long Discomforts.

If fisn't necessary to be sick-a-bed, you know, in order to be mighty uncomfortable.

Even slight indigestion affects the nerves, dulls the mind, and obscures the merry sunshine of Life.

And, Indigestion once started, grows fast, corrodes temperament, and discounts happiness, good cheer, capacity.

It does that long before it puts you on the Sick list.

Every thinking Doctor knows why.

Professor Rand knew it.

That's why he framed up for students his famous formula for Happiness, viz: "Trust in God, and keep your Bowels open."

The Bowels need adjustment from time to time, just like a clock, or a watch.

No "Good time" is humanly possible without this.

And, that time to adjust the watch is not when it has run down, nor when the main spring is broken, but at the very minute adjustment is discovered necessary.

The time to adjust the Bowels is not merely when your Head Aches, when your Liver is Sick, your Stomach in Revolt, and Nature's Food Process retarded for 24 hours or longer.

The proper time to adjust them is the very minute you suspect they need adjustment.

—If your tongue is slightly coated,

—If your breath is under suspicion,

—If your Head feels a trifle heavy or dull,

—If digestion seems even a little slow,

—If Heartburn, Belching, Colic or Restlessness begin to show themselves,

—That's the time to eat a Cascaret.

Don't imagine the Cascaret is ineffective because it is pleasant to eat as Candy.

It acts as pleasantly as it tastes. It is as congenial to your Bowels as it is to your Palate.

It is not a "Bile-driver" which floods out your stomach today with fluid juices needed for tomorrow.

But, it acts like Exercise, instead.

It stimulates the muscular lining of the Bowels and intestines so that they mechanically digest food and drive out the waste.

This is why Cascarets differ from all Purgatives, Physic, Cathartics and Whirlwind Purges that help today at tomorrow's expense.

Cascarets are the only Bowel and Liver medicine that do not need to be used for large doses every month, you use them.

The time to use a Cascaret is when you first suspect you need one.

They only way to have them ready to use precisely when you need them is to carry them constantly in your pocket, as you do a Watch or a Lead pencil.

The ten cent box of Cascarets is made thin, flat, round-edged, and small, for this precise purpose.

Be very careful to get the genuine, made only by the Sterling Remedy Company and never sold in bulk. Every tablet stamped "CCC."

SHOWS THAT ARE COMING

Tremont Theatre

Grand opera in English has proven the most important musical event of the season at the Tremont. "Aida" will be sung to-night, "The Valkyrie" to-morrow evening, "Lohengrin" at the Saturday matinee and "Hippolito" for the final performance on Saturday night. Mirth and romance will follow the music for Marlyn Arbuckle and his original company in George Ade's "The County Chairman" comes to the Tremont next Monday.

Colonial Theatre

Realistic scenes in Iceland are a feature of Hall Caine's "The Prodigal Son," now on its first week at the Colonial. With Edward Morgan, Edward Mackay, Marie Wainwright, Irma DeWolf and other favorites in the cast, capacity houses are a nightly occurrence. The piece is staged as though for a season's run, but can stay only one week more.

Boston Theatre

George Primrose and his company of blackface minstrels are at the Boston Theatre for this week only, a fact which seems to be noted by local amusement lovers, for the patronage is becoming. The entertainment itself is of such a substance and quality as to satisfy every minstrel lover. Old-timers will rejoice at the revival of the old-fashioned form of minstrel entertainment, which opens every performance. Babes in Toyland" follows the minstrels next week.

Park Theatre

There are moments during the action of "The Lion and the Mouse" at the Park Theatre when the scene becomes really tragic, such as in the third act, when Shirley Rossmore (Grace Elliston) refuses to wed the trust king's son, because, as she declares, "it would lower her dignity." Grace Elliston is showing old and experienced actresses how to act and modern women how to dress in this play, and it is to be said that Manager Harris is not to give a series of Browning matinees here so that she may again demonstrate her splendid fitness for the interpretation of Browning.

Hollis Street Theatre

When Eric Greene appears on the stage of the Hollis Street in her great character of "Madam Sans Gene" in "The Duchess of Dantzic" it is like a fresh breeze from the ocean—her vivacity is so infectious, her comedy so genuinely pleasing. Hoidbrook Blinn has a character especially fitted to him. This is the last week of "The Dictator." Della Fox's Dolly Ballet brings Lulu Glaser to this playhouse next Monday.

Keith's Theatre

Comedy at Keith's this week is being given full sway. Frank Rae and Gussie Brenchs, in a satirical exploitation of "A Woman of Few Words"; Jack Norworth with his "College Boy" monologue; Booker and Corbett in his Irish specialty, "The Walking Delegate"; and Sidith and Campbell, two of the most popular conversational comedians in the varieties, are some of the fun makers. Howard's ponies and dogs are a feature for the children. Nick Long and Idaleue Cotton come next week.

Castle Square Theatre

"Secret Service" has never failed of popularity at the Castle Square. It continues at this house only through this week and will be replaced Monday by "The Sword of the King," a romantic melodrama by Ronald MacDonald. Charles Mackay, as the hero, receives his old position as leading juvenile of the stock company, and the heroine will be played by Lillian Kemble.

Majestic Theatre

"As Ye Sow" will be "fifty nights old" at the Majestic on Monday evening next. In celebration of this event souvenirs will be given to the patrons on that night. So successful has this rural drama proven with the theatregoers of Boston that the end of the engagement has not yet been announced.

Globe Theatre

Fun! fun! fun! This is the way it goes at the Globe this week, for Johnny and Emma Ray have returned with their favorite fun incubator, "Down the Pike." The comedy of Johnny Ray is spontaneous and irresistible, and his talented wife is given an opportunity for the display of some stunning gowns. Next week comes Charles Grapewin in the latest comedy on the boards, "It's Up to You, John Henry."

Empire Theatre

Mary Sanders and Adelaide Manola make capital hops in the role of the Empire this week. "The Two Little Sailor Boys," in fact, has proven one of the most interesting of the series which this capable stock company is presenting. "The Criminal" comes next week.

Columbia Theatre.

"Yankee Doodle Girls," an aggregation that is far above the ordinary burlesque company, has a number of other features of interest, if that be more fact that the girls are handsome to look at and pleasing to listen to. The olio features are among the best the Columbia has had this year.

Grand Opera House

One of the most startling sensations by Robert Gaillard, in "For His Brother's Crime," at the Grand Opera House is the feature supporting a full sized bridge with his back, while a horse and his rider cross over it. So will be a matinee to-day and another Saturday. The other attraction will be Lillian Mortimer in her latest play, entitled, "No Mother to Guide Her."

Lyceum Theatre

"Way Down Yonder in Pelling Island" is a new idea in burlesque at the Lyceum this week. The distinct plot that requires lots of music, dancing and general funmaking to elucidate, it is humanized by a cleverly arranged olio of headline acts.

Howard Athenaeum

Who that has ever been to the Old Howard does not remember that "moral fish" feeling—the desire to go again? The burlesque at this week is giving a show that supercedes that feeling, and the vaudeville acts accentuate it. They are decidedly above the ordinary.

Palace Theatre

Lawrence Crane, assisted by members of the High Rollers company, is creating a sensation this week at the Palace with his mystifying acts. His great illusion, "Cremation," is creating a furore. The entertainment by the High Rollers is one of the best of the season.

Austin & Stone's Museum

Children and ladies by the thousand are flocking to Austin & Stone's Museum to see the pretty ponies of Swettie Beaman's circus. Miss Beaman's little horses are the most sagacious animals that have been seen in any Boston playhouse in a long time. There are two the stage shows and

TENOR CARUSO HAS RETURNED WITH 1,000 FANCY WAISTCOATS

Six weeks ago, when in London, Caruso, the operatic tenor, had 739 waistcoats. He has just arrived in America and it is stated that he has increased his wardrobe of fancy garments to one thousand.

Famous Singer Has Them of Almost Every Material and Coloring Under the Sun to Amaze His Admirers.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Caruso, the tenor with the fascinating voice and the heavy hands, came on the liner Wilhelm, with other stars of grand opera.

Many they were who waited to see Caruso arrive. He has a popularity beyond the artistic.

It has come to him because he is graceful, ingenuous, easily amused. He never poses. One does not have to praise his voice.

One does not have to seem to think that he is music mad. Bo! If one wishes to please him—and who does not—it is necessary this season, to talk of waistcoats.

Caruso has many, many waistcoats. "Tiny" Woodruff has not so many. Caruso had in London six weeks ago 739 waistcoats.

His Joy and Pride.

They are his pride, his solace and his joy of living. They are white, violet, blue, green, yellow, orange, mostly embroidered, and all in silk or satin.

When he began to collect them he wanted them to be brilliant. The tailors of London obtained for him waistcoats in combinations of color astounding. They made one think of Tamagno singing in a boudoir. Line Cavaliieri told Caruso one evening that he should not be allowed to wear them at a ball fight.

Caruso went, wearing a black waistcoat, to a ball fight in Madrid. Then the exquisite impresses of colors that Spain knows expected in his eyes.

He was deceived. In his picturesque phrase "I found my road to Damascus at Madrid," his intelligence about waistcoats is explained.

Bowdoin Square Theatre

Melodrama of the pronounced type is "Driven from Home," shown this week at the Bowdoin Square, and it is giving the usual crowds of patrons great pleasure. In fact, it is just the style of play that is really interesting to those who are in daily contact with problems of life. Charlotte Hunt is achieving the success of her career in it.

Symphony Hal

Boston's musically inclined have capitulated to the charms and to the wonderful music of the Irish Ladies' Choir, which is composed of fifty young women, and this marks his entree into active theatrical management. Helen Bertram is to play Jack Horner and Nellie Lynch will be Marjorie Daw.

Monday afternoon, November 14, will be Boston University Law School day at the Columbia Theatre.

"Uncle Wuntun," the new play by Leon Prosper, will be presented in Cohan's Australian Hall, Melrose Highlands, to-morrow evening.

Edward Daly's company, direct from the Garrick Theatre, New York, will have a week's engagement at the Park Theatre beginning November 20. They will present Bernard Shaw's delightful play, "You Never Can Tell," which thus far has never been presented on any stage except that of the Garrick. Mr. Daly will bring with him practically his original company: John Findley, Crystal Herne, George Parsen, Fred Tyler, Frederic Mitchell and Miss Hungerford.

Henry B. Harris has decided to give a series of special matinees of Robert Brownings play for Grace Elliston and Edmund Breese at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, during the run of Charles Klein's play, "The Lion and the Mouse," "In a Balcony," "A Blot in the Scutcheon," and "Pippa Passes" will in all probability constitute the repertoire.

Blanche Walsh, in Clyde Fitch's biggest success, "The Woman in the Case," has closed her four weeks' run in Chicago. The box office receipts for this period reached almost $20,000, and nearly 80,000 people

CONSPIRACY IS CHARGED IN RICH MAN'S WEDDING

Declares City Records Are False and Asks Court to Alter Them.

Declaring that there was a conspiracy formed by which he was recorded as being married when he had taken part in no marriage ceremony, James Corsano, also known as Vincenzo Corsano, a wealthy North End Italian, seeks for a mandamus in the Supreme Court to have the city records altered.

In his petition Corsano says that he was not married to Guiseppa Bisogniaro on December 4, 1900, as appears in the city records, but he says he has since consented to stand as the real party to the petition, as James O. Fallon of the city registrar's office, who performed the marriage ceremony, and made the usual record and return, says he can no longer remember the persons he married nor can he distinguish the groom from Corsano.

Corsano says that he has been informed and believes that the woman was in conspiracy with others unknown to him, and that they went before Fallon with some man who posed as him and were married. He says that the city registrar, Edward J. Mcellemen, has refused to alter his records. He seeks also an order directing Mr. Fallon to correct his record and return in accordance with the real facts.

He declares that all the facts in the proceeds are true as regards himself, but that they apparently refer to him. The girl whom he says he did not marry lives in Newark, N. J., but was in Boston at the time of the alleged ceremony. Her address was given as No. 16 Battery street, while Corsano's was given as No. 2 Salem street. He was living at that address in December, 1900.

The petition was filed to-day, and a hearing will take place before the Supreme Court.

GIRL SHOT MEN; MAY BE INSANE

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 9.—Christine Rau of Bare, Vt., the young girl who attempted to "shoot up" Woodsville last night, wounding two men, is confined at the hospital for the insane here under the observation of Dr. Dalloff, one of the most able alienists in New England.

Miss Rau is apparently well now, although the physicians at the hospital state that she is still suffering from nervousness and in a condition which will require considerable care for a number of days. They can assign no reason whatever for nothing about the event of election night.

The girl was committed to the institution at the suggestion of counsel procured by her father to defend her in the Woodsville court in case she was arraigned for assault with intent to kill. If the hospital experts declare that she is not insane she will be remanded to Haverhill jail until the Winter term of court.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but, on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

$2,000,000 SHOW HOUSE

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Backed by a subscription of about $2,000,000 from thirty of New York's kings of finance, Heinrich Conried, the great operatic impresario, has ordered plans for America's national theatre, which will cost, when built, $2,000,000.

The theatre will occupy the entire block between Sixty-second and Sixty-third street, facing Central Park West. It will be the most elaborated decorated theatre in the world. The foyer will be decorated by the most eminent artists and it will have art galleries that will be the richest in the world. A committee of women who are leaders in New York society and who shall decide who shall be accorded boxes in the Hall to the "Golden Horse Shoe" of the Metropolitan has already been formed.

Details have been quietly arranged, the site for the theatre has been bought, and everything is ready to go ahead with the project that has been the ideal of American theatregoers and actors for many years.

VICEROY AIDS MISSIONARIES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Minister Rockhill at Pekin has cabled the State Department that he has received assurances from the Viceroy at Canton saying that he has ordered the magistrate at Yingtak, where five American missionaries were recently killed, to take extraordinary measures to protect the missionaries and mission stations.

The magistrate telegraphed in reply that there was no sign of enmity among the people against the missionaries. It further stated that three missionaries at Yingtak had decided to go with their families to Canton and that they would be carefully protected on the way.

CHINA'S EMPEROR IN PRISON; KOREAN KING WANTS POISON

Dowager Empress of Celestial Kingdom Puts "Ruler" of Country in Solitary.

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 9.—Dispatches to Chinese merchants here and to Chinese papers say that the Emperor of China is ben-pecked. The Dowager Empress has locked him up in a small hall and placed him in solitary confinement. Food is thrust through small windows to the unlucky monarch, and the Hoolin Shimbun says that occasionally the Emperor shrieks like a lunatic.

When the Pekin palace was threatened by a bomb a short time ago, the Empress went to her summer palace and hastily summoned the Emperor. When she departed she knew of the bomb outrage. It is said that the monarch of the celestial Empire displayed uneasiness and confusion. At that the Dowager Empress called the guards and ordered the Emperor locked off into solitary confinement where he is still languishing.

These events are believed to foretell trouble. There are several parties among the Chinese now at work in an attempts to overthrow the present Chinese dynasty and the outlook for the Dowager and the Emperor is bad.

Monarch of Korea Would Kill Himself Because of Lost Prestige.

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 9.—The steamer Empress of China, from Korea, brings a story of a threat of the Korean Emperor to kill himself because of the attitude of Great Britain toward his country. He says he will swallow opium and sleep himself to death rather than bear the ignoming of a loss of prestige.

The Emperor is extremely angry because no mention of Korea's independence is made in the Anglo-Japanese treaty just formulated, and declares that he will not sanction the Japanese protectorate over his country.

When he learned the contents of the treaty the Emperor fumed and swore by all the bones of his long string of forefathers that he would rather die than live as the secondary ruler of his country. He sought one of the princesses of his house, and after telling her the situation disclosed a plan by which he would end his life by drugging himself to death. The princess told some one of the courtiers, and in this manner the story leaked to the public.

MAKES DAUGHTER PRINCESS ROYAL

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 9.—"Princess Royal" is the title authorized to the Duchess of Fife, eldest daughter of King Edward, by the King, a birthday honor list. Among those awarded with titles for service to the crown is J. R. Tyson, of the Canadian senate, who is made Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

RICH RESIDENTS GIVE NEGRO'S $10,000 BAIL

GREAT BARRINGTON, Nov. 9.—William Jones, the eighteen-year-old colored boy who fatally shot Walter E. Webster Halloween night, surprised the court by saying that he would be able to furnish $10,000 bail. Pending cause was found, but some of the wealthy Stockbridge residents agreed to furnish the money for the colored boy.

18 WARSHIPS HONOR BIRTHDAY OF KING

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Eighteen American and British warships in the North river fired a national salute of twenty-one guns at noon to-day in honor of King Edward's birthday. Each ship is in full dress. Rear Admiral Prince Louis of Battenberg, with his squadron of six armored cruisers, arrived from Annapolis early in the morning.

URGE DOUGLAS FOR CONGRESS

Governor May Enter Race for Representative from Cape District.

Governor William L. Douglas may run for Congress next year.

It is already predicted by his friends that he would make the strongest possible candidate for the Democrats of the Fourteenth Massachusetts District, commonly known as the "Cape" district. And some of them are saying, even at this early date, that he should be a candidate, and should let that fact be known now.

This usually large vote he received as Governor, the prestige that has come to him from a year in the executive chair and his own personal popularity in his home district will combine, his friends say, to make him a dangerous rival to the Republican member, even though the district is Republican nearly three to one.

Last Fall Thomas H. Buttimer of Hingham, the Democratic candidate, polled 7,000 votes against the 18,000 rolled up for Congressman Lovering. This is a heavy lead to overcome, but those who are now advocating Governor Douglas for the Congressional contest in 1906 declare that he is the Democrat who could pull down that lead if anyone could.

To-day Governor Douglas leaves for a week's absence. During that week he will go to Washington with the members of the executive committee of the National Association of Boot and Shoe Manufacturers to lay before the President the arguments of the shoe men for the removal of the duty on hides and sole leather.

SCHOONER BUMPS SCOW.

NEW MUSIC NEW

We offer you, through a special arrangement with the publishers, the song "I'll Be Waiting in the Gloaming, By the Golden Sweet." This composition is from the pen of J. Fred Helf, one of the best known composers of popular songs in this country, and it is, we can safely say, his greatest song and his best effort. Helf will long be remembered as the writer of the famous "Mamma's Boy" and "The Fatal Rose of Red," two warm favorites with lovers of popular music. We give you below the chorus of this song, and would advise you to try it on your piano, as we feel sure it is captivating melody, and we are confident it will surpass in popularity any popular song now on the market. A Thanksgiving Proclamation by Governor Douglas November 30 Set as Date for Ancient Holiday First Observed in Old Bay State.

GOVERNOR DOUGLAS has designated Thursday, November 30, as Thanksgiving Day. His Excellency's proclamation is as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
BY HIS EXCELLENCY, WILLIAM L. DOUGLAS, GOVERNOR,
A PROCLAMATION FOR A DAY OF PUBLIC
THANKSGIVING AND PRAISE.

In accordance with custom, I, with the advice and consent of the Council, hereby appoint Thursday, the thirtieth day of November, as a day of Thanksgiving and Praise.

On that day the people of this Commonwealth should join in the praise of the Almighty for the bounteous crops and the abundance of the harvest gathered from the many fields of industry; for the continuance of peace and prosperity; for the extension of the great work of education; for the broadening influence of Christian charity, and its practical manifestation in the more human consideration and treatment of the sick, the unfortunate and the afflicted; for the broader spirit of toleration and the nobler relations of brotherhood existing between our citizens, which marks the progress of our Commonwealth and our nation.

Given at the Council Chamber, in Boston, this eighth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and five, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and thirtieth.

WILLIAM L. DOUGLAS.

By His Excellency the Governor,
with the Advice and Consent of the Council,
WILLIAM L. OLIN, Secretary.

GOD SAVE THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

HUGHES PROBES HEGEMAN OF METROPOLITAN

Shows Increase of President's Income from $15,000 to $100,000 Annually.

A TABULATED STATEMENT

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—John R. Hegeman, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, took the stand when the legislative investigation was resumed this morning. Mr. Hughes plunged into the questions of expenses of the company on which he had touched in the investigation yesterday. The total expenses, it was shown for the year 1904 were $10,874,725.

Mr. Hegeman presented a tabulated statement showing the various funds which made up the total.

Story in Figures.

Tabulated statements were also presented showing the amounts paid to officers of the company. These statements showed that from 1877 to 1900 the salary of the president rose from $15,000, including salary and commutation, to $100,000 straight salary, the amount voted to Mr. Hegeman for 1905. Since 1900 the president has been on a salary. In that year the salary was fixed at $75,000. It was raised gradually from that amount to $90,000 in 1902, and this was the sum drawn by Mr. Hegeman until this year, when it was increased to $100,000.

The statement showed that the remuneration of the first vice president had jumped from $7,400 in 1877 to $75,000 for the present year. Other salaries showed steady increases.

Mr. Hegeman Explains.

Mr. Hegeman explained that a large part of the money paid to the president and the vice president between the years 1877 to 1900 consisted of a percentage on the insurance business. The salary of the president was fixed at $8,000. The rest of the money drawn by the president was paid in commissions on industrial business. The president, he said, received at first a sum equal to twice the amount of increases in a year in the weekly premiums. He illustrated this by showing that if the increase in premiums for a year amounted to $10,000 per week, the president received $20,000, or two times this increase. Gradually the commission of the president on such premiums was reduced down to one-eighth of the increase.

STUYVESANT FISH TO JOIN IN PROBE OF MUTUAL LIFE

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Stuyvesant Fish, president of the Illinois Central Railroad, has decided to serve on the committee appointed by the directors of the Mutual Life to investigate the affairs of that company. This decision was announced to William Truesdale, president of the Lackawanna railroad, who is chairman of the committee, Mr. Fish having had the matter under careful consideration since his return from his Western trip last week.

DOUGLAS NAMES TEN DELEGATES

Gov. Douglas made the following nominations at the meeting of the executive council: Charles F. Pidgin, Joseph Lee, Frank K. Foster, Frederick Amory, Max Mitchell, Prescott F. Hall, Frank W. Merritt, all of Boston; George Grafton Brooks of Cambridge, Augustus P. Gardner of Hamilton and Frank R. Hall of Worcester, to be State delegates to the immigration congress of the National Civic Federation in New York, December 8 and 7. E. F. Worthington of Chatham to be assistant medical examiner for Barnstable county, to fill the unexpired term of Louis Edmonds, resigned; George E. Gardner of Boston to be a member of the commission on uniform legislation.

ST. FRANCIS SCHOOL ALUMNI TO MEET

The alumni of St. Francis de Sales School, Charlestown, has been reorganized under the direction of the Rev. James N. Supple as president, and to-morrow evening a meeting will be held to arrange a business and social program for the year. The other officers of the association are Martin Mullen, vice-president; Henry Orpen, treasurer; Miss Agnes C. Flynn, secretary.

DEMOCRATS ASK FOR RECOUNT OF LIEUT-GOV. VOTE

Draper's Small Plurality Encourages Hope that Whitney Will Pull Through.

Confident that a recount will show that Henry M. Whitney has been elected lieutenant governor of Massachusetts, the Democratic State Committee has sent telegrams to county and city chairmen in almost every town and city in the State, asking that they petition for recount of the vote for lieutenant-governor in their town before five o'clock Friday afternoon.

Returns give Eben S. Draper, republican candidate, a plurality of but 1900 in the entire state. The total number of votes cast for lieutenant governor is something like 336,400, so the Democratic forces think they have good ground on which to hope for a reversal of conditions when the recount will have been concluded.

This first instance in the history of Massachusetts where a party has petitioned for a recount of practically the entire vote of the State. In towns where the total vote was 100 or less there will be no petition for a recount, but as there are comparatively few towns where the vote is not larger than this the recount will embrace practically every city and town in the entire commonwealth.

The complete returns show that Draper received 182,107 votes, while Whitney polled in a close second with 180,207, while Arthur Lyman, chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic state committee obtained 1,900 for governor. He immediately sent out this telegram to every city and town chairman:

"Headquarters Democratic State Committee, Boston, Nov. 7, 1905.

"Please prepare and file petition for recount of vote for Lieutenant-Governor. It requires signatures of ten registered voters in each ward, with residence on May 1. Get twelve signatures for safety. One signer must swear to it. Must be filed with city clerk before Friday at 5. File Tuesday, however, to avoid legal ambiguity. City clerk has blanks.

(Signed.) "ARTHUR LYMAN."

Mr. Lyman is confident that the recount will make a big difference in the vote, and that if it does not show that Whitney is the next Lieutenant-Governor it will reduce Draper's plurality to a very small figure.

6 MONTHS FOR THEFT OF MEN'S WAGES

Alexander McKenzie, a stableman, was sent to the House of Correction for six months by Judge Fallon of the South Boston Court to-day, on the charge of having stolen $62 from Alexander Grimes, a truckman. The offence was committed last December, when the money was given to McKenzie to pay off truckdrivers. He disappeared with the money and was not seen again until yesterday, when he was arrested.

COACHMAN IN BANKRUPTCY FOR $85,000

Formerly Employed by Late Millionaire Brewer of Brookline.

WENT INTO REAL ESTATE

The announcement that John A. Merrigan formerly coachman for the late millionaire brewer, John A. Kohl of Brookline, petitioned in bankruptcy, with debts amounting to $85,814.91, has created a decided sensation in the town.

Miss Elizabeth M. Kohl, daughter of the late John Kohl, and sister of her mother, Mrs. Louise Kohl, are the heaviest creditors, the petition citing $25,000 indebtedness. They are the administrators of the Kohl estate. Miss Kohl said to the BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"Mr. Merrigan has been in the employ of the family for the past 20 years. My father thought a great deal of him and helped him out financially on many occasions that I know of and was always ready to assist him when in need. He is not being that Merrigan had little or no appreciation of the value of money. He has borrowed money lately for which he is paying eight per cent. interest, and everything he owns, I hear, is heavily mortgaged."

Made Present of Note.

"So far as I am aware he is indebted to us for $10,500 and interest, for the houses on Aspinwall avenue, which he owns jointly with his wife, who has refused to relinquish her claim on the property.

"When he was in difficulties over the Aspinwall property and needed something like $9,000 he said that he was unable to settle and of course we advised him. He had one note for $5,500 and we made him a present of it. What he does with his money I don't know and it is none of our prising to me, as he is sober and indus trious.

"I can't understand how he ever became so deeply in debt. Within a few weeks he notified us he could not meet the interest on our first mortgage on the two houses on Aspinwall avenue, and that the taxes were unpaid. We were urged by our attorney to foreclose, but it is hard to do anything like that to an old servant of the family. I suppose we will have to now."

The late Mr. Kohl was associated with Mr. Houghton in the ownership of the Vienna Brewing Company at Roxbury and the family estate and mansion is located on Marion street, Brookline.

Property Well Located.

It is said that Merrigan, who resides at No. 23 Harvard avenue with his wife and three young children, began his real estate operations by buying the land and erecting two three-family apartment houses at Nos. 28 and 28A Aspinwall avenue, in the residential section of the town. The land is assessed for $4,200 and the two houses for $9,500, making a total of $12,700. On the assessors' records the property is owned jointly by Merrigan and his wife, Margarette.

Following the difficulties on the Aspinwall avenue estate, Merrigan purchased a six of 17,765 feet on Aspinwall avenue, moved a handsome two-story, oak finished cottage, in which he now resides, to the rear, and then built three apartment houses valued at $38,000, all of which are alleged to be heavily mortgaged.

STRANGE STORY OF YOUNG GIRL PUZZLES POLICE

Cambridge Child Says She Was Kidnapped, but Doesn't Know How.

HER TALE IS DOUBTED

Whether 15-year old Florence Saunders of No. 101 School street, Cambridge, was kidnapped by "a dark man" and a "veiled, dressed woman," who took her to "a magnificently furnished house," as she declares, during the four hours she mysteriously disappeared, or whether her thrilling story is the product of a child's vivid imagination, is the puzzle which police of Cambridge are trying to solve.

Think Girl Lured Away.

At present they are at sea in their investigation of the case, and inclined to think that the girl's story is a fake. Mrs. William Saunders, the parents, are convinced that an attempt was made by unknown parties to lure their daughter into a den of vice.

Florence was found at ten o'clock in the morning on the doorsteps of her home four hours after she had been sent with a one dollar bill, to purchase some coffee. The fifty cents which she had in her received in change, and a small stickpin were missing. She was in a dazed condition when discovered by Mrs. Saunders, who had started out to notify the police of the girl's disappearance.

When she could talk Florence declared that she was walking along Columbia street and was accosted by a man. At the same time something, presumably chloroform, was placed over her nostrils, and she was dragged into a waiting carriage by the "dark man" and his woman companion, who, she says, then whirled her away to a magnificently furnished house.

She is unable to locate this house, but declares it was filled with richly dressed women and men. She was detained there her too stubborn and suggested throwing her out when she refused to drink "a dark colored liquid" offered to her.

The physician who attended the girl declares that aside from a few scratches on her face she is unharmed. At the store where she claims to have purchased the coffee nobody recollects seeing her. There is no coffee on the sidewalk where she claims to have been struck on the head, although she asserts the coffee was spilled in the struggle.

BABY'S RAW SCALY HUMOR

Intense Suffering for Two Years—Had Several Doctors and Tried Everything, but in Spite of All Terrible Sores Kept Spreading.

CURED BY CUTICURA AT COST OF 75 CENTS

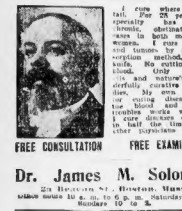
"My sister had a terrible humor on her shoulder when she was eighteen months old, causing intense suffering for two years. We had several doctors and tried everything, but in spite of all we did it kept spreading. One day it would scab over and crust, then break out in a watery matter once from it and the scabs would all fall off. It would be raw for a short time, then scab over. Some one recommended Cuticura, and we immediately procured a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a cake of Cuticura Soap. We saw much better after the first bath with warm water and soap, and an application of the Ointment. Before it was half gone we saw a marked change for the better, and she was entirely cured, without a scar being left. We only used one treatment and one cake of Soap. Her skin is now entirely clear, and she has not had a sign of trouble since. (signed) Mrs. L. C. Walker, 5 Tremont Street, Woodfords, Me., Aug. 15, 1904."

ANOTHER CURE

"I had sores on my face for four years. I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment for failing hair and dandruff and found them excellent. I was entirely cured without them. (signed) Miss A. M. Seeley, Box 57, Worcester, Mass., April 14, '05."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for every Humor, from Pimples to Scrofula, from Infancy to Age, consisting of Cuticura Soap (25c.), to cleanse the skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.), to heal, and Cuticura Pills (25c.), to purify the blood. A single set often cures. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston. Mailed Free, "How to Cure for Skin, Scalp, and Hair."

CHRONIC DISEASES



I cure where others fail. For 28 years my specialty. Chronic, obstinate diseases in both men and women. If cure cannot be effected by prescription method. No "free" ads. No cutting. No blood. Only healing and nature's own powerfully curative remedies. My own method of curing diseases of the nose, throat, pelvic troubles works wonders. Cures in one-fourth to half the time most physicians do.

A LIFE STORY IN CLASSIFIED ADS

Chapter XXIV.

The Classified Instructor.

The child of the household in school had been entered,
And on education her young mind
was centered,
For one of her years very fast she progressed,
But there was a reason—perhaps you have guessed.

Said the father, "She's taught in a
'Classified School'",
Whatever we want it is always our rule
To use AMERICAN Want Ads.; Thus thus we procured
The best of instructors; of that we're assured.

Quite plainly we show by this little rhyme
That AMERICAN Want Ads. are the best all the time;
They touch the right spot, responses
they bring;
That's why their virtues we thus loudly sing.

WHOLE WORLD OF SPORTS COVERED FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN BY ITS CORPS OF EXPERTS

FOUR PROMINENT MEMBERS OF CAPT. SHEVLIN'S FOOTBALL SQUAD WHO ARE WORKING FOR THE YALE ELEVEN.

Howard Roome, Halfback.

Dutch Levine, Fullback.

HARVARD LEAVES TODAY.

To-day the Harvard varsity eleven, substitutes, second team, coaches, trainers, rubbers and the rest of the retinue leave Cambridge for Philadelphia, where they will meet the eleven of the University of Pennsylvania in the first game of the year between the elevens of the "Big Four," and what is also one of the most important games that has ever been played between Harvard and Penn.

A good, clean game between Harvard and Penn Saturday will do much to quiet the wild stories that have been about as to the probability of a break in football relations between the two. A slugging game will do much in the other direction.

A victory Saturday will give the winner the upper hand in the diplomatic talk that is sure to follow Saturday's game, and so is more to be desired than a victory under ordinary circumstances.

Enormous Crowd Expected.

An enormous crowd is sure to be on hand to witness the game. The possibility that it may be the last Penn-Harvard game for some years, the uncertainty of the outcome of the game, and the desire to see what the famous Bill Reid's team can do under high pressure will undoubtedly make the air bubble with excitement when the two elevens—the Crimson and the Red and White—clash.

All this is realized by the little bunch of Harvard men who leave Cambridge to-day, and they will accordingly carry with them an added determination to play to their best ability their part in the scene of the story of Harvard-Penn football that will be enacted on Franklin Field in Philadelphia day after to-morrow.

Last Practice Satisfactory.

The Harvard squad leaves Cambridge with the knowledge that the last hard practice that they put in on Soldiers' Field in preparation for Penn was a very satisfactory performance. The Crimson players showed great form in their last hard work yesterday afternoon. Their attack went off with a snap and a spring that made it irresistible. Four times they swept the second eleven down the field for touchdowns, and once forced the second team runner back of his own goal line for a safety. Had not a great part of the afternoon's work been spent in putting practice the varsity would have made as many touchdowns again.

The defense of the Crimson eleven was as good as its offense. The second was given the ball on the varsity's five-yard line, but the best they could do was to get the leather to the two-yard mark where they had to relinquish possession of it on downs. But once during the whole afternoon did the second team manage to make a first down.

Backs Did Excellent Running.

The Crimson backs did some brilliant running, especially on kicks. Foster ran fifty yards on a punt, Captain Hurley made three return runs for twenty-five yards or over, and Gould who got into the game again at full back for a part of the time, ran a kick off back forty yards. Phil Stockwood who alternated at fullback with Gould broke through the second's line out side of tackle and went seventy-five yards for a touchdown.

Last night the Harvard men were thoroughly tired out. They will be feeling vigorous by the time they face Penn, however, for they will have no more work from now on except a long signal drill on Soldiers Field early to-day and short work in Philadelphia to-morrow.

Parker Was Shifted.

Bartol Parker was shifted to centre in the practice yesterday afternoon, taking the place of White. It is by no means unlikely that Parker will begin the game at centre against Penn. He is a faster man than White and infuses more ginger into the centre of the line than does White. Parker weighs 220 to 235 for White.

Just who will play on the Crimson eleven against Penn, no one knows. Bill Reid says that he is not going to announce the lineup until after the team reaches Philadelphia. There is no saying who will play the ends or fullback, while centre is also in doubt.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 9.—Only five regular members of the Yale eleven were able to get into the scrimmage yesterday.

Two 15-minute halves were played, one behind closed gates and one open to the public.

Walter Camp was again on the field and was active in the coaching. With him were E. T. Glass, "Pa" Corbin, "Al" Sharpe, W. W. Heffelfinger, Ralph Bloomer, Jack Owsley, Foster Rockwell, Foster Sanford and Frank Hinkey. The coaches made things lively while the practice lasted. While the halves were short they were the fastest and hardest played on Sanford and Rockwell looked after the scrub team, and right used Rockwell's tandem play. This play fooled the varsity ends again and again, and the practice demonstrated that Yale had only two end rushers this Fall. Shevlin and Oates were missed in every play.

Erwin, the big guard, who has been out of the game for two and a half weeks, returned to the varsity, and was given his former position at left guard. Hockenberger was relegated to the scrub team. There is considerable speculation as to whether Erwin will be able to oust Hockenberger from the left guard. It will be a close fight between the two men. Before Erwin left the team he was considered sure of the left guard, but during his absence Hockenberger has made big strides in his development, and is now just about as good as Erwin. The Brown game on Saturday will settle the question.

There is some talk of trying "Don" Mackay in the big games at right tackle. Some of the coaches claim that he is eligible, that as the rule about four years' playing in any one branch of athleticswas not passed until after he had entered Yale, he can play. If this is the interpretation of the rule, Mackay is likely to be seen on the big games, as he is a far better tackle than Bigelow, and is a better guard than either Erwin or Hickenberger.

Tad Jones, Regarded Football Find of the Year, Kicking a Goal, With Veeder Holding the Ball.

MOWATT IS BEATEN BY ABE ATTELL

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—Tommy Mowatt, the "fighting conductor" of Chicago, lost to Abe Attell at the Washington Sporting Club.

Mowatt was at all times eager to mix it up. Attell, though, was as clever as usual, and was seldom where Mowatt thought he ought to be when he let one of his circular drives cut the air.

Attell received very little punishment, except in the clinches, when both men took advantage of the agreement to box under straight rules and they pummeled away as long as either had one arm free.

BROKE WORLD'S 3-MILE RECORD

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—Old Point Breeze race track was the scene of the breaking of another world's record. Ed Bryan, 2:04½, covered three miles to a wagon, unpaced, in 7:06⅗.

In 1857, Prince, a gelding, covered the three miles to a high wheel wagon in 7:33½. Ed Bryan's race was run to a modern bike-wheeled wagon. This horse also holds the two-mile world's record.

COWELL ELECTED AT WILLIAMS

WILLIAMSTOWN, Nov. 9.—Frank R. Neild '06 of Holyoke tendered his resignation as captain of the Williams College Basket Ball Team, and, at a meeting of the members of last year's team, immediately following, Eugene J. Cowell '06 of Ashburnham, was elected his successor.

SELEE TO BOSS PUEBLO CLUB

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Frank G. Selee, former manager of the Chicago National League Club, will manage the Pueblo Club of the Western League next season, according to a statement made by President O'Neill of that organization.

BROWN ELEVEN FIT.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 9.—For three days the Brown varsity have been given light work, and it is not probable that there will be any long scrimmages before the Yale game. The team at present is in fine condition, and the general routine will consist in preliminary drill in tackling and signal practice. Two nights a week signal practice will be held in the gym.

MICHIGAN MAY PLAY PENNSY NEXT YEAR

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—Michigan's great football team will be seen in the East next year, unless all signs fail. From the present outlook this will be made possible by the strained situation involving Harvard and Pennsylvania. The Michigan-Pennsylvania game will take the place of the annual Harvard-Pennsylvania contest seems to be the feeling in the West.

Charles Baird, Michigan's athletic director, is quoted, in a dispatch published in a Detroit newspaper, as saying: "We cannot arrange for a post season game with Pennsylvania this year. We have Wisconsin and Chicago yet to play, and it would be hard work keeping the men in condition for another big struggle. It is possible, under the circumstances, however, that we will open negotiations for athletic relations with Pennsylvania, to begin next year."

Michigan, despite Mr. Baird's dignified and non-committal statement last year, is anxious to play on big game in the East. The entire West is anxious that the Wolverines make the move, and the football public in the Eastern world certainly would like to see the much heralded Westerners.

BIG LIST AMATEUR BOXERS AT B. A. A.

With one of the biggest list of entries in amateur boxing bouts ever held by the B. A. A. the preliminaries were run off in the club's gymnasium last night.

There were twenty bouts in all before the prelims were completed and the semi-finals and finals and rounds will be held on Saturday night.

It was a case of quantity and not quality that appeared in the material and there was hardly a contest in the score of bouts that brought out any real promise in the participants.

There were 125 entries received for the tournament, but this was cut down to ninety-four.

A special attraction on the card for Saturday night is the meeting of a Mongolian and a colored boxer in the ring, as they were drawn to fight each other, and the club members are figuring on a hot affair.

The trials consisted of weeding out the boys in the 105, 115 and 125-pound classes, as there was a raft of ambitious aspirants seeking honors with the padded mitts.

The Winners.

105-pound class—J. Fotchi, South Boston, beat T. McArthy, Everett; Angus McDonald, South Boston, beat J. J. Melbourn, South End; Tom Ryan, Boston, beat George Phillips, South Boston; Charles Waters, Jamaica Plain, beat Jimmy Burns, Everett; Frank Mason, Chelsea, beat J. C. Tighe, Boston; M. Glover, South Boston beat J. Flynn, South Boston; J. A. Cheney, Medford, beat Eddie Allen, South Boston; Tom Petch, Somerville, beat John Chiswell, Boston.

115-pound class—J. Bolton, Somerville, beat Willie Ryan, Lawrence; Pat Cunningham, Boston, beat John Stanton, South Boston; Harry McKinnon, Boston, beat Martin Miller, Roxbury; Angus Wood, Newton, beat Jimmy Roche, Roxbury; Robert Bates, Cambridge, beat Jack Coleman, South Boston; Larry Briggs, Chelsea, beat Fred Dumas, Medford; John E. Finley, Cambridge, beat Frank Smith.

125-pound class—Eddie Daniels, Boston, beat Hermon Lucas Rodindale; John J. Delaney, Roxbury, beat Raymond Bennett, Portsmouth, N. H.; Mr. McGowan, South Boston, beat Will McNaley, Boston; Frank Miller, South Boston, beat James Mahoney, Dorchester; Newport, R. I., beat Richard Paffy, Boston.

HOLD FIFTH MATINEE.

The fifth Fall matinee of the Metropolitan Driving Club held on the upper road of the Charles River speedway was up to the high pitch it reached a week ago. The footing on the upper road was almost perfect, and the way Tom Phair, Zibs and Mace put in the heats showed that it is fast.

LAMSON CAN PLAY AGAINST HARVARD TEAM

Lamson will play on the Pennsylvania eleven against Harvard next Saturday. This is certain as the Harvard Athletic Committee announced last night that it had received a notification from the Pennsylvania Athletic Committee to this effect.

In 1900 the agreement between Harvard and Penn to arbitrate all ineligibility cases was terminated so that Penn alone had the right to decide whether Lamson was to play.

This termination was overlooked by both parties until after the Lamson protest.

NEED NEW RULES, SAYS BILL REID

In a letter to John H. Morrill, secretary Harvard Graduates' Athletic Association, Dahl Reid, captain and coach of the Harvard football eleven, says:

"The Carlisle game is not now played. night's there should be more skill and less brute force, and rather than see the game spoiled seem to be the essentials I prefer it. The letter in full follows:

Cambridge, November 8, 1905.

John H. D. Morrill, Esq., Harvard Graduates' Athletic Association, Cambridge, Mass.

Dear Sir—After several years of experience with intercollegiate football, after careful consideration of the criticisms which have been made of the game, and after the many honest but fruitless efforts to change it so that these criticisms could be avoided, I have become convinced that the game as it is played to-day has fundamental faults which cannot be removed by any radical revision of the rules. I am therefore unwilling to admit that the present game is the game be objectionable to some people, that appears to me to be much less serious than the fact that there is a distinct advantage to be gained from brutality and the evasion of the rules—offenses which, in many instances, the officials cannot detect because they are concerned when the players and the ball also are hidden from the eyes of the umpire. For these reasons I have come to believe that the game ought to be radically changed.

I, therefore, respectfully request your Association, which represents the alumni of the University, immediately to appoint a committee whose duty it shall be to make a careful investigation of the subject, and to report such thorough-going alterations in the game as will remove the unfair advantage now obtained from violation of the rules, will put a higher premium on skill, make more weight and strength of less value, and will produce a more scientific and interesting sport.

Very truly yours,

Free Turkeys for Choicest Thanksgiving Dinner Menus

Send in Menu of the Best Thanksgiving Dinner You Ever Ate; You May Win a Prize

HAVE you sent in your best menu for a Thanksgiving dinner? If not, why not? Some New England housewife is to receive daily, until Thanksgiving, a prize for the best Thanksgiving dinner menu.

YOU may be the one to win a prize.

The prize is, of course, a big, fat and wholesome Vermont turkey.

Scores of letters received by the "Turkey Editor" in yesterday's mail contained tempting menus, but inclosed no recipe. Be sure you tell how to cook your favorite dainty on the bill of fare. This is one of the conditions of the contest.

Remember these simple directions:

Write on one side of the paper only.

Send your full name and address.

Send the dinner menu and the recipe for one dish.

Address it to the "Turkey Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 82 Summer street, Boston, Mass."

From the masters sent in the best one will be selected by a board of competent judges. Winners will be announced as soon as possible. The day before Thanksgiving a prize turkey will be delivered FREE OF CHARGE to every winner.

These turkeys will be supplied by the well-known Blackstone Provision Company, 99-08-70 Blackstone street, and the prize birds will be picked from their extensive Thanksgiving stock.

Here are the best of the menus received yesterday. The prize winner will be announced within a day or two.

Cut the venison into pieces and add salt and pepper, with enough water to cover it. Simmer till you have drawn a good gravy. Then strain it. In the meantime, make a good, rich pie crust. Line a pie dish; cover bottom and sides of deep dish with one sheet of it, put in meat, adding a little nutmeg and mace. Pour in gravy and a glass of wine. Lay on top bits of butter. Cover pie with thick lid of paste. Bake two or more hours, according to size. Just before it is done, brush over with beaten egg, and brown. MRS. JOHN BARRY.
No. 1,187 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester.

Oysters on half shell.
Cream of Chicken Soup.
Fried Smelts. Tartar sauce.
Roast Turkey. Cranberry sauce.
Mashed potatoes. Baked squash.
Boiled onions. Mashed turnips.
Olives. Chicken salad.
Scalloped oysters.
Delicate cake. Vanilla ice cream.
Nuts. Fruit.
Coffee.

HOW TO ROAST TURKEY

Select a young turkey. Remove all the feathers carefully, singe it over a burning newspaper on the top of the stove; then "draw" it nicely, being careful not to break any of the internal organs. Remove the crop carefully and cut off the head and the neck close to the body by drawing the skin over it. Wash the turkey well inside and outside with several waters, and in the next to the last rinse a teaspoonful of baking soda; wipe dry inside and out with a clean cloth; rub the inside with salt and pepper.

Then stuff the breast and body; sew up the turkey with a strong thread, tie the legs and wings to the body, rub it over with a little soft butter, pepper and salt, dredge with flour, place in buttered pan, pour in a cup of boiling water, and set in the oven.

Baste the turkey often, turning it around occasionally, so that every part will be uniformly baked. When pierced with a fork and fluid runs out perfectly clear the bird is done.

Boston Women Need a Reform in Shoes

By Katherine James

A TALL, handsomely gowned woman crossed Washington street at Temple place and entered a department store.

It was a rainy day. She lifted her skirts to escape the muddy pavement and doing so, displayed her shoes.

They were loose, ill-fitting, flat, run over at the heels, and covered with mud.

And they were fair examples of the shoes to be seen on the street that rainy day when lifted skirts brought the pedal extremities of feminine Boston into public notice.

Very recently the editorial writer of this paper had a lot of things to say about the universal unfitness of Boston women's feet. His remarks brought to the office an avalanche of letters, some praising him, some condemning him.

Nevertheless the fact remains that Boston women are indifferent to the appearance of their feet.

In the first place they wear a style of shoe which seems indigenous to the soil. They are broad-soled, low-heeled and flat. They have not the style of the shoe one usually sees on the shapely feet of a well-groomed woman. They are not as well cared for as they might be.

A few years ago the typical Boston woman was capriciously addicted to wearing skimpy skirts, a dressy coat, a queer, nondescript hat and glasses.

Today such a caricature would be as absurd as it would be unfair. Boston women dress well and sensibly for the street.

They wear well-made gowns and attractive hats. They wear superb furs and more beautiful furs can be found in any city than those owned by Boston women of wealth.

But they are undeniably careless about their feet. From beneath the hem of an expensive and faultless gown will peep unctuous pair of shoes, and a Paris hat will be poised jauntily above shoes that have ceased to long any marked resem blance to things of beauty.

Yet Boston women have not ugly feet. The shoe dealers say so. They say the Boston foot feminine is smaller, more shapely than the New York or Chicago foot.

But it is individual in style. As a rule it has a longer vamp and a lower instep than the New York foot.

This has been cultivated by generations of so-called common sense shoes.

More than one woman whose foot demands by every right a high heel and pinched toe and high arch, will crowd and press it into a broad, flat, low-heeled pair which she calls "sensible."

There is no one style of shoe that can be called sensible for every woman. Each woman has a foot of her own and she needs a style or shoe different from her sister. Whatever shoe fits a foot is the sensible shoe for that foot.

Muddy streets may have something to do with the shabbiness of the Boston woman's shoe.

The Boston streets are dirtier than they should be. But the chief cause for untidy, sloppy-looking feet is lack of care. Carelessness in selecting a shoe and carelessness in caring for the shoes precludes the idea of any shoe being well shod.

Boston women have established a world-wide reputation for being beauty and clever and cultured.

They have reached a point now where to attain perfection they can afford to turn their attention from their heads to their feet.

Hints on Health and Beauty

By the Professor

DEAR PROFESSOR:—Kindly tell me of something to keep my hair in curl.

YOUNG GIRL.

ONE of the simplest things I know any thing about for keeping the hair curly is made from the following formula:

Gum arabic	1 ounce
Mixed white sugar	½ ounce
Hot distilled water	¼ pint

Dissolve. When the solution is cold add two fluid ounces of alcohol and six grains each of bichloride of mercury and sal ammoniac. The last should be dissolved in the alcohol before the admixture. Agnes

It is not necessary to add enough water to make the whole measure a pint. Perfume with cologne or lavender water. Moisten the hair with the fluid before putting it in papers or pins.

DEAR PROFESSOR:—Will you please tell me how to remove a mole from the face? Is it dangerous to do so?

MARY.

Moles are not dangerous to remove. Apply a drop of glacial acetic acid to the mole with a camel's hair brush. Repeat the application every day for a week or ten days. The mole will shrivel and fall off.

DEAR PROFESSOR:—Please tell me how to remove superfluous hair from the face.

MARY.

Make a paste of powdered quicklime and water. Apply it to the hair and rub it off with a piece of flannel. Repeat the application every day for a week or ten days.

DEAR PROFESSOR:—Please tell me how to remove freckles.

MARY.

Mix a teaspoonful of powdered borax with a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Apply to the freckles every night before retiring.

DEAR PROFESSOR:—Please tell me how to remove blackheads.

MARY.

Blackheads are caused by a clogging of the pores of the skin. Wash the face with a strong soap lather and rub the blackheads with a towel. Then apply a solution of peroxide of hydrogen.

DEAR PROFESSOR:—Please tell me how to remove pimples.

MARY.

Pimples are caused by impure blood. Take a dose of Epsom salts every morning before breakfast. Wash the face with a strong soap lather and apply a solution of peroxide of hydrogen.

DEAR PROFESSOR:—Please tell me how to remove wrinkles.

MARY.

Wrinkles are caused by a lack of nourishment to the skin. Rub the face with cocoa butter every night before retiring.

If "Woman's Rights" Are Hard to Define and Vague, Her Privileges Stand Out Well-Defined

By Beatrice Fairfax

NOWADAYS woman is protesting so vigorously for her "rights" that she is somewhat apt to lose sight of her privileges.

Just what a woman's "rights" are it would be hard to define, as she is at present in such a chaotic state of clamor that I doubt if she really quite knows what she wants herself.

But if her "rights" are vague, her privileges are not—they stand out clear and distinct.

And the woman who does not appreciate them and make the most of them is not half a woman.

SOME women are willing to forego the privileges for the sake of the rights others want both.

Greatest of all a woman's privileges are the respect, tenderness and chivalry shown her by man.

He loves her for her femininity.

Just as soon as she loses that quality she is in danger of losing man's love.

Since the world began man has protected and guarded woman, hence his devotion and tenderness.

The woman who is constantly on the warpath for her "rights" may hold the respect of man, but I doubt very much if he feels any great degree of tenderness for her.

She does not appeal to his chivalry and sense of protection.

THE woman who is too insistent on what she calls her "rights" is in danger of becoming unfeminine.

Gentleness, her most womanly charm, is in danger of deserting her.

A woman can be brave and strong and self-reliant without losing her femininity.

Men will respect as well as love her for those qualities.

The "woman's rights" woman is apt to be imbued with the idea that she owes her first duty to the world in general.

That is her great mistake.

Her first duties are toward husband, children and home.

After she has properly attended to them she will find she has comparatively little time for clubs, etc.

For the wise wife and mother finds that duty to husband and children covers a very wide area.

She must cater to their mental as well as their physical needs.

SHE must make the home a centre where the children will find much that contributes to their education.

She must keep up to date with current topics and matters of interest.

Every household is a little world, and the queen mother holds the happiness of all the inhabitants in her hands.

If she does this perfectly it stands to reason that she cannot devote much time to fighting for her "rights."

What greater joy can come to any woman than to be the loved and honored head of a household?

All the "rights" in the land are not worth the love and appreciation of her husband and children.

"The right" she should fight hardest of all for is love.

That is her heaven-born right, and the strongest weapons she can use in her fight are womanliness and gentleness.

Advice to Anxious Sweethearts

By Beatrice Fairfax

A CLEAR CASE OF DUTY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-three years old, married four years, and have a child six months old. My husband left me a month after it was born and I have not heard anything of him since. I have heard on good authority that he is leading company with a young lady now and she is not aware that he is a married man. Don't you think I ought to find out the young lady's address and tell her of it? He has not given me one cent since my child was born.

MRS. E——.

I MOST certainly think you should warn the young woman. It is your duty to let her know the kind of man he is. You may be able to save her a great deal of unhappiness. Perhaps you can shame him into doing his duty and providing for his wife and child.

The Story of an Irish-American, a Prisoner for Love, Persecuted in an English Prison

CHAPTER XLV.

At the Bedside

BRIEFLY, but with emotion, he told what Lucas had urged and said. When he had finished, Geraldine sat for a moment silent, with clasped hands. At last there was a prospect of Laurence's complete exoneration from the terrible charge upon which he had been condemned.

She turned to him with a deep-drawn breath.

"I come upstairs to my father now. I have told him you are here. He waits to see you."

Laurence hesitated and flushed.

"He believed me guilty," he said, in a tone that conveyed passionate reproach.

"He was misled, explained Geraldine. "He will learn better now, when he sees you."

Laurence yielded and followed her up the broad, shallow stairs.

Mr. Lucas raised himself upon his pillow as they entered. Weak though he was, his look into Laurence's eyes was severe in its questioning.

"I am glad to see you, Laurence," he said, gently. "Your return has been a great surprise to me. I thought you had parted out of our life forever."

"I am afraid you hoped so, sir," said Laurence, bitterly.

Mr. Lucas looked at him a moment before replying.

"A few days since I thought I was going where I should learn the truth as to your innocence or guilt."

"Sir, cannot you believe me?" cried Laurence, his features contracting with pain. "Yesterday—even last night—I could only have met your words with my bare word. But to-day I have other proof. In a very little while, I trust, my innocence will be publicly established."

Still Mr. Lucas scrutinized him keenly. "Is there any man whom you believe to be guilty?" he asked.

"There is, sir," Laurence replied.

"Who is it?"

A thrill seemed to pass through the air of the room. Laurence hesitated, doubting whether he had right thus boldly to accuse any man of the most terrible of crimes. At last he said in a low voice, but plainly:

"Ralph Vickers. I know he has bitterly wronged me, borne false witness against me, and I cannot help believe that it was he who murdered Charles Kesteren."

Mr. Lucas drew a deep breath. Geraldine hastily interposed.

"Come away, Laurence. He is not strong enough to bear or to speak more."

The old man, who had sunk back again upon his pillow, nodded.

"Let him come to me to-morrow," he murmured.

"To-morrow morning," said Laurence.

"Not in the morning," protested Geraldine. "It is not safe for you."

Laurence smiled in answer.

"There is no real risk, Geraldine. I will come by the lonely ways."

CHAPTER XLVI.

Face to Face.

RALPH VICKERS was hurrying to Fenton Court. He wanted to pay a visit to Mr. Lucas—and possibly also an interview with Geraldine—before starting for the office. Fresh, sparkling-eyed, and dressed as usual with extreme care, he hastened along, with half a smile playing about his lips—his movements had lost every trace of the subtle cautiousness that had once marked them.

With restored tranquility of mind, his features become calm and arrogant. Every shadow of fear had left him. He laughed now at his old dread of retribution. He had no more regard himself as a favorite of fortune, whose every move in the game of life would be attended with success.

He was approaching the boundary walls of the Fenton Court grounds, revelling in his own expectancy, drawing a mental picture of Geraldine Lucas as he would presently see her, with the glow of the traces of sleep still lingering about her lovely eyes.

Suddenly he stopped, as if at a word of command. His head turned back. He gave a shudder passed quivering through his body. His eyes, void now of all triumphant expectation, were fixed upon a man who had turned the corner of the road and was advancing toward him with quick, firm steps. Who was he—who was he? An apparition?

For a moment Ralph Vickers thought this possible, even in broad daylight. A cold perspiration broke out upon him. Was it the dead come back to oppose him—or avenge?

He recoiled step by step before the figure that nevertheless drew swiftly nearer like an oncoming destiny. It was near enough now for him to realize the truth—that no phantom confronted him, but the living as Laurence Craig, changed, aged, seathed by the fiery ordeal through which he had passed, but still the same, the victim, the man who was supposed to have been silenced forever.

For an instant the impulse seized Vickers to turn like a coward and fly. But it was too late. He could not move. The other man's eye held him. A stronger will than his own kept him rooted to the spot where he stood.

A few seconds more and Laurence Craig had reached him, and they stood facing each other, close together in the early morning sunlight—the one sullen pale, shrinking, yet still cherishing the poison of defiant hate in the dark currents of his chilling blood; the other strong, serene even in his righteous anger, and terrible in that moment with the tragic dignity that is gained through passionate conflict, suffering and pain.

The Meeting

"I did not mean to see you yet," said the full rich voice of Laurence Craig; "but it is as well that we have met. I have to speak with you."

"You startled me," Vickers affectedly replied, with a look of quick suspicion upon him, as if he feared some concealed enemy. And he took up his position behind a second.

Both men hurried into the sand to their armpits, leaving only their heads and shoulders exposed.

Then the shots rang out, but ceased to roar, and were lying on their oars, looking curiously toward the shore.

It was clear that they were eagerly anticipating the capture of their fierce enemies by a still more terrible enemy.

Jack, now fully in possession of his faculties, had meanwhile been considering what to do.

Toward the ocean there was no escape. His own boat was wrecked.

That of the fugitives was out of reach, and to swim out to sea would only invite attack from them.

And in the woods the head hunters had been alarmed, and were doubtless even now preparing for descent on the white men.

"How many heads have you left, Steel?" said Jack, quietly.

"About twelve, I think," said Steel.

"All right. That will serve. These fellows lack arms of any kind. We must frighten them."

"But how?"

Jack pointed to the bodies of two of the land crabs lying on the sand.

"Behind those no shelters. Quick!"

Steel, with a look of quick comprehension jumped behind one of the great crustaceans, and Jack took up his position behind a second.

Both men burrowed

THE RALSTON BANK BURGLARY

Synopsis of Preceding Parts

THE steel safe of the Ralston National Bank is blown open and robbed of $120,000, part of which had been counted and checked by Philip Dunston, receiving teller, and placed in the safe under his eyes and those of Miss Clarke, secretary to President Fraser of the bank. Cashier West actually places the money in the safe.

Just before the safe is locked Fraser enters the bank and takes something out of it. Apparently he puts this in his inside breast pocket. Dunston is positive the floor before the safe was perfectly clear at the time they left the bank, yet in front of the safe is found a handkerchief, the property of Cashier West. The handkerchief was evidently left by the burglars, although Dunston and Miss Clarke now West leave the bank with a handkerchief in his hands.

Fraser, stunned into inactivity by the blow, sends for Professor Augustus S. F. X. Van Dusen, an eminent scientist, so called the Thinking Machine, for whom he has done a favor. He believes the Thinking Machine can solve the mystery, the police having done nothing definite, attaching no importance to the handkerchief.

With the Thinking Machine comes Hutchinson Hatch, a reporter. To them are told all the known facts. The Thinking Machine examines the premises, then the handkerchief. On this handkerchief he finds a faint odor of perfume. He notes around the office, speaking to the employes. Dunston he finds uses a perfume like that on the handkerchief.

To the amazement of the bank officials The Thinking Machine sends Hatch away to find out whether Miss Clarke has ever used violet perfume; also if perfume is used in the home of Cashier West, whose handkerchief was found. West becomes angry and says no perfume is used by himself or any member of his family.

The Thinking Machine, to placate him, says the investigation may exonerate him, and by elimination declares that those employed in the bank planned and had a hand in the robbery. The only ones that only two persons there use perfume, Miss Clarke, who uses a strong rose scent, and Dunston.

The Thinking Machine insists on searching the employes. Most of them agree, only two, Dunston and Miss Willis, a stenographer, objecting. Miss Clarke says nothing, but falls in Fraser's arms just when she is asked to retire with the other women for the search of the three women employes.

There is no result from this search up to Fraser, who stoutly protests such a search is unnecessary in his case, because he is president of the bank. Despite this objection he is finally searched and ten thousand dollars of the stolen money is found in his inside breast pocket.

The second of a series of mysteries which come under the observation of Prof. Augustus S. F. X. Van Dusen, Ph. D., LL. D., etc., etc., so-called

"The Thinking Machine,"

By

Jacques Futrelle.

(Copyright, 1905, by American-Journal-Examiner.)

PRESIDENT FRASER was removed from the Ralston National Bank to his home, an hour later, reported in a dangerous condition.

His advanced age did not withstand the shock consequent upon the finding of $10,000 of the stolen money in his pocket after he had protested so against being searched. Now alternately he raved and muttered incoherently, and the old eyes were wide, staring fearfully always.

There had been a consultation between The Thinking Machine and Cashier West immediately after the removal of President Fraser, and the result had been another hurried meeting of the board of directors. At that meeting Cashier West was placed, temporarily in command, and the board voted its confidence in him. The police, of course, had been informed of the matter, but no arrest was probable because of the condition of the banker.

Immediately after The Thinking Machine left the bank Hutchinson Hatch returned there and inquired for him. From the bank he went directly to the home of the scientist on Beacon Hill. There Professor Van Dusen was bending over a retort, busy with some problem, while awaiting the return of the reporter.

"Well?" he demanded.

"West is correct," related Hatch. "Neither he nor any member of his family uses perfume; he has few outside acquaintances, he regards his habits, but is a man of considerable wealth, it appears."

"What is his salary at the bank?" asked clerk in the bank, and has made himself what he is."

"That means speculation," said the Thinking Machine. "You can't save a fortune from a salary, even $15,000 a year. Now, Mr. Hatch, find out for me all about his business connections. His source of income particularly I would like to know, also whether or not he has recently sought to borrow or has received a large sum of money; if he got it and what he did with it. He says he has not sought such a sum. Perhaps he told the truth. See you to-morrow."

"Yes, and about Miss Clarke"—

"Yes, what about her?" asked the Thinking Machine.

She occupies a little room in a large boarding house for women just off the Back Bay district," the reporter explained. "She has no friends, who call there at any rate. Occasionally, however, she goes out at night and remains late."

"But the perfume?" asked the scientist irritably.

Room Disarranged

"She uses a perfume, the housekeeper tells me, but she doesn't recall just what it is—so many of the young women in the house use it. So I went to her room—after properly coaxing the housekeeper—and looked. There was no perfume there. Her room was considerably disarranged, which seemed to astonish the housekeeper, who declared that she had carefully arranged it about 9 o'clock. It was after 2 when I was there."

"How was it disarranged?" asked the scientist.

"The couch cover was jerked awry and the pillows tumbled down for one thing," said the reporter. "I didn't notice any further."

The Thinking Machine was silent for a time, thoughtful.

"What happened at the bank?" asked Hatch.

Briefly the scientist related the facts leading up to the search, the search itself and its startling result. The reporter whistled.

"Do you think Fraser had anything to do with it?"

"Run out and find out those things about West for me," said The Thinking Machine, creatively. "Come back here to-night. It doesn't matter what time."

"But who do you think committed the crime?" insisted the newspaper man.

"I may be able to tell you when you return," was the enigmatic answer.

For the time being Professor Van Dusen seemed to forget the matter of the bank robbery, being busy for an hour or more in his tiny laboratory. He was aroused from his labors by the ringing of the telephone bell.

"Hello," he called. "Yes, Van Dusen. No, I can't come down to the bank now. What is it? Oh, It has disappeared! When? Too bad! Hon's Mr. Fraser? Still unconscious? Too bad! I'll see you to-morrow."

The scientist was still engrossed in some delicate chemical work in his laboratory just after 4 o'clock that evening when Mary, his housekeeper and maid of all work, entered.

"Professor," she said, "there's a lady to see you."

"Name?" he asked, without turning.

"She didn't give it, sir."

"There is a woman."

A Woman Calls

He finished the test he had under way, then passed out of the little laboratory into the hall leading to the sitting room, where unprivileged callers awaited his pleasure. He sniffed a little as he stepped into the hall. At the door of the sitting room he paused and peered inside. A woman stood and came toward him.

It was Miss Clarke.

"Good evening," he said. "I knew you'd come."

Miss Clarke looked a little surprised, but made no comment.

"I came to give you some information," she said, and her voice was subdued. "I am heartbroken at the awful things which have come out concerning—concerning Mr. Fraser. I have been closely associated with him for several months at his secretary, and I won't believe that he could have had anything to do with this affair, although I know positively that he was in need of a large sum of money—$90,000—because his personal fortune was in danger. Some error in titles to an estate, he told me."

"Yes, yes," said The Thinking Machine. "Whether he was able to raise this money I don't know," she went on, "I only hope he did without having had to go to the bank after hours."

"You mean without having to tell a lie?" said the scientist, curtly. "Miss Clarke, is young Dunston in love with you?"

The girl's face changed color slightly because of the sudden question.

"I don't see—" she began.

"You may not see," said The Thinking Machine, "but I can have him arrested for that robbery and convict him."

The girl gazed at him with wide, terror stricken eyes, and gasped.

"No, no!" she said hurriedly. "He could have had nothing to do with the affair at all."

"Is he in love with you?" again came the question.

There was a pause.

"He had reason to believe so," she said, finally, though.

And went on:

The girl's face was flaming now, and confusion into her eyes, the scientist read the answer. She did love him.

"Understand," he commented severely. "Are you going to be married?"

"No," she said, and never more so. "Not—not ever."

The girl slowly recovered from her confusion, the scientist squinting at her curiously.

"I believe you said you had some information for me," he said.

"Yes," she faltered; then more calmly, "I've come to tell you that the package of $10,000 which you took from Mr. Fraser's pocket has again disappeared."

"Yes," said the other, without astonishment.

It was presumed at the bank that he had taken it home with him, having regained possession of it in some way, but a careful search has failed to reveal it."

"Yes, and what else?"

The girl took a long breath and gazed steadily into the eyes of the scientist, with determination in her own.

"I have come, too, to tell you," she said, "the name of the man who robbed the Ralston National Bank!"

To be continued to-morrow.

"Are you in love with Dunston?" asked the Thinking Machine.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES LABOR UNION COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

The campaign committees sent out by the Wage Earners' Club reported at last night's meeting that the election of Fred Kneeland, general organizer of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers, to the Board of Aldermen was practically assured.

The following committees were appointed to further Kneeland's candidacy: Executive committee, William F. McCarthy, Arthur W. Clarke, C. F. Tousey, C. C. Hunt, H. M. Myers and John T. Cashman; membership committee, James H. Crozier, Dennis D. Driscoll, Frank H. McCarthy, Jeremiah J. Donovan and John T. Cashman.

All members are requested to attend next Wednesday night's special meeting at the Central Labor Union headquarters, Wells Memorial building.

ELECTRICAL WORKERS.

The trustees of Electrical Workers' Union No. 103 reported the organization to be in a flourishing condition at last night's meeting in Dexter Hall. A new roller skating rink to be opened in this city soon was declared to be on the unfair list.

A communication from the Public Franchise League in reference to the proposed merger of steam railroads and electric railways was returned, as it did not bear the label of the Allied Printing Trades Council. S. E. Sanborn was elected delegate to the Central Labor Union.

PATTERN MAKERS DONATE.

Donations to the Harvard College scholarship fund of the Newsboys' Union and to the Carney Hospital were made at last night's meeting of the Pattern Makers' Association. C. H. Clark and L. C. Powers were appointed a committee to visit the Providence local this evening. The Lawrence Pattern Makers' Association has invited a delegation from the Boston local to be present at a mass meeting to be held November 23.

PAINTERS' CHOSE M'CARTHY.

William F. McCarthy leaves this city Saturday night for Lafayette, Ind., to attend a meeting of the committee on revision of the international convention of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers. Mr. McCarthy has been elected Eastern representative. The committee meets in Lafayette on Sunday, and will consider all proposed changes submitted by the locals throughout the country and make recommendations to the international convention to be held at Memphis, Dec. 4.

ALL LATHERS AT WORK.

John T. Cashman, business agent of the Building Trades Council, reported favorably on two jobs at last night's meeting of Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' Union No. 72. It was reported that all members were at work.

Daniel J. Sullivan of New York, a former member of the Local No. 72, addressed the meeting. Three applications for membership were considered.

ANOTHER FIRM SIGNS.

Ten dollars was donated by carriage and Wagon Workers' Union to the Carney Hospital at last night's meeting in Hollis Hall. It was reported that another firm had signed the union agreement. Twelve new members were admitted and fourteen applications were acted upon.

LABOR NOTES.

Painters' Union No. 11 has voted not to join the Structural Trades Alliance.

Machinists' Lodge No. 264 will nominate officers at to-night's meeting in Machinists' Hall, Wells Memorial Building.

Iron and Brass Molders' Union will hold a ball December 13 in Odd Fellows Hall.

The new Firemen's Union will hold a smoker talk and mass meeting Sunday afternoon in Wells Memorial Building. An invitation has been extended to all non-union firemen, oilers and coal passers to attend.

Good coffee has been used by millions of sound, healthy people since the remote ages.

Science tells us that good coffee will not harm the system when taken in moderation.

The claim that good coffee injures the digestion is imaginary.

The practical experience of millions of people who never suffered an ache or a pain because of good coffee—bears out what science tells us about it.

Of course, certain cheap, adulterated brands of coffee may hurt the digestion, for they sometimes contain elements that injure the stomach and digestion.

But such coffee as

The Dreadful Massacres in Russia

The Heart of the American People Calls for Prompt Interference

Copyright, 1905, by Star Company

Horrible beyond belief are the stories of murder, of fiendish torture that come from Russia to this country.

Thousands of defenceless men and women are murdered in cold blood by the orders of a hideous tyranny that seeks to escape from the consequences of its own crimes by turning the hatred of the ignorant mass against the religion of another body of the people.

The Hearst newspapers express the opinion of every man of good heart in America when they call upon the government at Washington to take immediate steps, and when they express their belief that the President will not fail to act in this emergency in the energetic and unconventional manner so typical of him.

It is not necessary to remind President Roosevelt that the men and the women and the children now murdered in Russia—in Odessa, in Kishineff, Minsk, Smolensk—are the relatives, the fathers, the brothers, the friends of American citizens.

President Roosevelt knows what tears are shed, what agony of the heart, of the soul is endured by hundreds of thousands of people in this country as they read the dreadful stories of murder and torture that shock the entire civilized world.

President Roosevelt will not be stopped, we dare predict that of him, by any technicality or any little nicety of international dealings.

It may be said that the United States government cannot interfere unless it be shown that some American citizen is in danger.

The Hearst newspapers hasten to supply the State Department at Washington with the definite case upon which it can base a proper appeal.

At Smolensk at this moment there is an American citizen, Miss Sarah Mainster, of No. 5 East Tenth street, New York—WHERE HER MOTHER IS AT THIS MOMENT.

This young lady went to Smolensk some time ago with a passport issued by the United States government and vised by the Russian Consul General at New York.

The young woman's father is dead. She has no one to protect her; her mother is prostrated with grief and anxiety.

This is only one case among many.

We believe and we hope that the State Department will take immediate steps to assure itself that the life of an American woman—THE DAUGHTER OF AN AMERICAN CITIZEN—is not in danger.

And forceful inquiries in this one instance will undoubtedly do much to protect other American citizens in Russia, and, what is far more important, to protect the thousands and the hundreds of thousands of unfortunate human beings now at the mercy of the bloodthirsty beasts actually guilty of burning the helpless.

It would be a great disgrace to this country should any man fail to use his strongest arguments in most emphatic appeals in behalf of these men, these WOMEN AND LITTLE CHILDREN THAT ARE BUTCHERED WHOLESALE.

With the internal affairs of the Russian government the United States, technically speaking, has nothing to do.

But these massacres which disgrace civilization disgrace the United States government, if it allows them to go unrebuked.

The English nation did not hesitate to denounce the Armenian massacres. And we ourselves—the United States people—were not slow in denouncing and threatening Turkey on account of those murders.

Are we going to allow Russia to continue killing inoffensive people BECAUSE WE FEAR HER SIZE AND POWER?

Are we going to be more afraid of the Russian bullies, the professional murderers of Europe, than was the tiny Japanese nation? It is a matter which calls for immediate action. Delay means more murder in Russia and dreadful moral suffering by hundreds of thousands of American citizens in this country.

This newspaper calls upon Mr. Roosevelt for immediate action.

It does not doubt that he will use his power now to prevent the shocking murders in Russia as he recently used his power, disregarding all conventional traditions, in stopping the war of armed soldiers between Russia and Japan.

Lessons in Municipal Ownership

XXI.

Other Advantages to Labor

By Professor Frank Parsons

We have seen that public ownership pays higher wages for shorter hours than private ownership in the same country and makes the workers partners instead of subjects.

These are not the only advantages to labor.

The freedom and effectiveness of organization is much greater under municipal ownership than under private management. The workers in many municipal plants have strong unions, while many private companies do their best to prevent their employes from organizing labor unions, discharging men who are suspected of making efforts in that direction and refusing to recognize the union in case one succeeds in being born.

Talking with a leading gas man the other day, I said: "John Burns and other labor leaders in Great Britain told me that the sliding scale in the private gas works had worked great harm to the cause of labor, as it had united the interests of consumers with that of the companies to prevent improvement of labor conditions."

The gas man replied: "Of course the labor men in England talk against the sliding scale, because the private companies will not recognize the unions while the public gas works do."

This explanation only turns another screw in the coffin of the sliding scale and private management. Private gas works as a rule not only oppose the increase of wages and the shortening of hours, but refuse to treat with the unions.

And the sliding scale makes all these tendencies still more emphatic, because it gives the companies a certain amount of support from public sentiment in their resistance to the demands of labor.

So strong is the tendency of public ownership in the contrary direction that in some countries, New Zealand and Australia for example, the government not only recognizes labor unions, but strongly encourages them and makes them the basis of all appeals for decision and settlement of industrial disputes.

The friendly attitude of the public toward labor unions and the willingness of public managements to grant fair hours and wages, etc., without a struggle and in many cases even without a request, removes the necessity for strikes and lockouts and saves the losses and misery incident to industrial battle.

So the unions are able to use for education and general purposes the funds and the energy that under private ownership go into contention and strikes.

The managers get less pay under public ownership and have less power, but the workingmen get more pay and better treatment and have a great deal more power as part owners with a large share in the control.

No one can expect the owners and managers of our public service corporations to favor municipal ownership unless they are broad enough to put the public good above their dividends and big salaries.

But the workingman who does not favor municipal ownership under proper governmental conditions is a strange phenomenon. It would not be fair to call him a freak, but if no corporation has a cinch on him, it is hard to think of any other explanation except that there must be some trouble with his gray matter.

He is like a man who had rather eat at the second table than the first, a man who would rather have other people own the street railways, etc., than be one of the owners himself, a man who would rather be bossed than have the power to boss the bosses, a man who would rather work ten hours for $1.50 than eight hours for $2, a man who is better satisfied with this world the less he gets out of it.

What Morgan Does For American Art

By Henri Pene Du Bois

It is certain that the tariff on art is to be abolished. J. Pierpont Morgan wants it to be abolished. The President has said that it ought to be abolished.

The collections that J. Pierpont Morgan and E. H. Van Ingen have in England are to be brought here as soon as the tariff gate is drawn. They are an irresistible temptation.

They have much value in money, and one may find in them the works of the academic painters that have been most ardently lauded.

There are works of Raphael, Michael Angelo, Vinci and their declamatory successors. I do not prefer them. I wish that the American School of Art at Rome did not exist.

It is patronized by Mr. Morgan. He thinks that it must be valuable, since France, which is artistic very profoundly, has a French School of Art at Rome.

But there is a misunderstanding. The art of France that is admirable owes nothing to the French School of Art at Rome, was developed in spite of it, and is not at all Italian.

Italy's First Renaissance was splendid. It produced Giotto, Masaccio, Carpaccio, Mantegna, the Angelico, Botticelli, Ghirlandajo, Lippi. Rome says of them that they are "primitive."

The lesson that Rome imposes upon the schools of art that are there is against the pre-Raphaelites. It is Italy's Second Renaissance which Rome extols.

It took the grandeur of Michael Angelo and made of it emphasis; the tenderness of Raphael, and made of it simperness; the inventive power of Vinci, and made of it facility. Rosso, Primaticio and Caracci carried to France easy imitations of the works of Rome's masters.

To perpetuate them the Ecole des Beaux-Arts was instituted in France. Against it, in advance, Bologne, Cousin, Conjon, Pilon, Bontemps, Marchand, Poussin, Lesceot, achieved miracles. But the Ecole des Beaux-Arts persisted because it flattered the vanity that consists in believing that one may become an artist by study.

"Here are the proportions of artistic figures—figures of Michael Angelo, Raphael, Vinci," said the Ecole. "There is nothing to do but to reproduce them." Against this idea Chardin, Watteau and Fragonard, whose works were French, attacked Le Brun and Mignard, who were Academicians. Prudhon attacked David; Delacroix attacked Ingres.

The battle continues. They have much trouble with it, the artists of France; Jules Lefevre, Tony Robert-Fleury and other masters of Academic art continue to teach the proportions of the Roman works of art, to get the official rewards and the applause of the half-educated. Is there anything worse than half-education?

It abolishes sincerity. Is there anything more powerful than human stupidity? It is sovereign. We have an American art of painting.

Paris knows it well, and it is acclaimed there. Whistler made it triumphant. It was startlingly effective at the Luxembourg Gallery last month.

There, under a work of Roman imitation, a street scene appeared. It was a street of Paris's Latin Quarter in an atmosphere of snow. The snow whitened the roofs of buildings, made patches here and there on the pavement, gave to the air a cold, gray, melancholy tone. The picture was realistic.

It was crybugly real, but it had a soul. In the work was the painter's mind expressed. One saw the scene and also what the painter thought of it, the impression that it made upon his sensitiveness.

He is delicately sensitive, vividly intelligent and an American painter of great strength. He is Robert Henri. Do you think that Rome could have taught him anything?

What Rome teaches of art is familiar through repetitions of Greek temples and statues, copies of plaster casts of figurines, airs of barrel organ, everywhere. I should not protest against the generosity of millionaires that gives to an art student the faculty to visit Rome if this faculty were not conditional.

The condition is to immobilize the art student at Rome, Paris or Madrid, Munich or Venice, Vienna or Amsterdam, is more valuable than Rome to an art student. Rome does not impose it Velasquez, Rembrandt, Titian or Rubens, and they are the teachers to impose upon an art student's faculty to study and to understand.

The American School of Art at Rome is inspired by the Villa Medicis that the Ecole des Beaux-Arts has there, but the modern thought of France is to abolish the Villa Medicis.

The villa is vain only of the artists that it had not the power to diabolize, Watteau, Fragonard, Manet, Monet, Degas, Redin, and in music Indy and Debussy, are not pupils of Rome.

Mr. Morgan is to abolish the tariff on art and to aid the art students that wish to be immobilized at Rome. When the tariff on art shall have been abolished he is to bring here his Raphael, his Giulo Romano, his models of the Second Italian Renaissance.

They were very exquisite to him, and since he is to show them gratuitously to the public, he is to be praised for this. But what they are to do for American art is perhaps to divert, if not pervert, it entirely.

If they do neither of these two execrable things, I think that they are to be as useless to American art as the official School of Art at Rome.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP LEAGUE

Ward ..... City .....

I, the undersigned, enroll myself a member of the Municipal Ownership League of the city in which I reside. I pledge myself to use every honorable effort to bring about the municipal ownership of public utilities. I believe that city lighting plants to supply the needs of cities and of the citizens as well is one object to be attained.

The attempt now being made to elect a Legislature which will pass measures permitting the establishment of an electric railway monopoly in Massachusetts and granting exclusive franchises to a favored syndicate shows the necessity of a prompt and concerted movement for public ownership by all citizens, irrespective of party.

Cut this out, sign it and mail it to the Secretary of the Municipal Ownership League, No. 80 Summer street.

Little Editorials from the People

LET NEW ENGLAND AWAKE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

It is about time the people of New England awoke and tried to stop the butchering that is going on in Russia. The poor Jews in Kishineff and Odessa are mostly dead and wounded. Why don't you people of America try to help out the suffering Jews, Poles and Armenians in Russia. Even the police and soldiers are marching the streets in Russia, crying, "Kill the Jews."

The people in America ought to come together and try to help the poor people in Russia. It is a shame that our own people in America should read the news in the papers and should not try to help the poor souls out. It is our own blood that is being shed in Russia.
